Doctors Order Another Layoff For President

Town On Southern Tip Of Florida Changes Street Name For Chief

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—President Eisenhower arrived here this afternoon on his doctor's orders for about two weeks of sunshine, rest and outdoor exercise.

Boarding the presidential plane Columbine III in winterish Washington, the chief executive took off from National Airport and made it to America's most southernmost tip in about four hours.

The landing was made at Boca Chica Airport here, a part of the Navy's vast naval base in Florida's keys.

Accompanying the President to the semi-tropical spit were his younger brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, and the chief executive's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder.

Key West, learning of the President's decision to make the trip south, immediately made preparations to welcome the presidential party. One of their first moves was to rename one of their main streets "Eisenhower Drive."

Eisenhower Drive intersects Roosevelt Boulevard and Truman Avenue, named for other presidential guests.

OFFICIAL ACTION of renaming the street will come Monday but the city officials have arranged to place one street marker for the President to see as he drives through town.

Physicians recommended warmer weather and more chance to get outdoors to help with Eisenhower's convalescence from his Sept. 24 heart attack.

It could be an important factor in his decision on whether to seek a second term. His doctors hope the trip will condition him for resumption of a full work load in about two weeks.

How his heart stands that load could tip the scales one way or the other so far as reelection bid is concerned.

Eisenhower will stay at the same Key West naval base which was a favorite vacation spot of former President Truman.

He will occupy quarters which he used in 1949 when, as president of Columbia University, he recuperated at Key West from a gastro-intestinal attack. The quarters which Truman occupied on several trips to Florida now have been subdivided and no longer are suitable for a presidential stay.

Mrs. Eisenhower is not going. The White House noted that her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud of Denver, is in Washington for the holiday season.

ANOTHER REASON Mrs. Eisenhower is staying behind is the birth last week of a new granddaughter.

The baby and her mother, Mrs. John S. Eisenhower, still are in Walter Reed General Hospital. The President and his wife visited them late yesterday.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it is unlikely Eisenhower will return to Washington for the opening of Congress next Tuesday. Hagerty called such a return unnecessary.

The President's annual State of the Union message, outlining the administration's 1956 legislative program, will be sent to Congress Jan. 5, two days after the lawmakers convene.

Nationalists, Reds Exchange New Fire

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The heaviest gun battle in a month erupted this morning between Nationalist Chinese on Quemoy and Communists on nearby Red-held territory.

Official Nationalist reports said the Reds lobbed more than 500 shells onto Quemoy and the Nationalists hit back, particularly at Amoy. Today's shelling was the heaviest since Nov. 28.

Fresh Air And Bloody Highways

New Year's Eve Revelers Target Of Experts' Advice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two different experts today gave vastly different but interesting views regarding celebrators during the coming New Year's Eve.

One declared that taking a walk in the fresh air won't sober you up; a few lungfuls of outdoor oxygen just won't make you a safer driver.

The other flatly predicted that the nation's New Year's Eve traffic death toll would set a record as did the Christmas week-end.

The fresh air tip came from Dr. Theodore Koppanyi, professor of pharmacology at the Georgetown University Medical School, Washington, D. C., who discussed alcoholic poisoning before the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

The highway toll prediction came from the National Safety Council which estimates that 420 Americans will be killed on streets and roads during the three-day

New Year celebration "unless there is a sharp improvement in the driving habits that shocked the nation last weekend."

THE COUNCIL predicted 560 motor vehicle fatalities for the three-day Christmas holiday. The number added up to 609.

The record for traffic deaths during a New Year holiday is 407. It was set during a four-day period at the end of 1952 and the start of 1953.

"The cold figures force us to the conclusion that 420 will die," Ned H. Dearborn, council president, said. "But we hope the terrible lesson of the Christmas holiday will be taken to heart by everyone."

Let's look at the "cold figures" of this year. Motor vehicle fatalities through October totaled 30,980. They show a gain of 7 per cent over the total for the corresponding months of 1954.

Statistics figure the year's toll won't come up to the record of 39,696 set in 1941, but it may approach 38,000.

The blackest of the "cold figures" were recorded this year on holidays.

During the five 1955 holiday periods traffic accidents cost 2,119 lives and the over-all total, including deaths from all accidental causes, was 3,156.

Even on Safe Driving Day, a 24-hour period dedicated to cautious and courteous driving, 1955 failed to match the showing of 1954.

The S-D Day toll last year was only 51. This year it was 69.

As to Dr. Koppanyi's thesis, he said it takes five to six hours for your body to burn up four ounces of whisky. And experiments indicating that breathing nearly pure oxygen speeds sobering are not borne out by other studies.

There's also disagreement whether injections of insulin or a sugar, glucose, speed the rate of burning up alcohol.

From limited experiments, injections of another form of sugar, fructose, do look promising for making the human body get rid of alcohol faster, the scientist said.

Another study has reported benefits from eating honey in sobering up and avoiding hangover. Honey contains fructose.

Dr. Koppanyi said enough drinks to make your blood contain from 0.15 to 0.45 per cent (15 to 45 hundredths per cent) alcohol produce inebriation. More drinks than that produce coma. A blood content of from 1/2 to 1 per cent alcohol "is within the possibly fatal range."

He warned there is a "low margin of safety" between an anesthetic dose of alcohol, and a lethal dose. The fatal dose varies with individuals, but drinking from one to two pints of 100 proof distilled whisky in a short time has killed people.

Ex-French Chief Shouts Down Hecklers

PARIS (AP)—Former Premier Pierre Mendes-France tangled with Communist hecklers last night in a major campaign speech here.

He shouted them down to reject their demands for a "popular front" alliance after the Jan. 2 election of a new assembly.

Mendes-France, leader of a leftist "Republican Front" of Radicals and Socialists, had invited all political leaders opposing him to debate the issues. Only Communist party boss Jacques Duclos showed up, backed by a Red cheering section conspicuous among the 8,000 excited Parisians on hand to hear and heckle.

Mendes-France, thrown out of the premiership on a vote of confidence last February, is trying to stage a major political comeback in the general elections. His bitter rival in his own Radical (moderate) party, Premier Edgar Faure, called for the balloting five months ahead of the constitutional schedule over the opposition of the premier and several other potent political leaders.

Red hecklers shouting "popular front" and "unity" interrupted Mendes-France for as much as 10 minutes at a time. But he pulled open his tie and collar and shouted into the loud-speaker system that he and the Socialists allied with him wanted none of the Reds or their program.

Deserter Given 2-Year Term

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—An American Army private pleaded guilty today to deserting to Communist East Germany with his German girl friend. He was sentenced to two years at hard labor.

A seven-member general court-martial imposed the maximum sentence on Kenneth D. Miller, 23, of San Francisco.

The sentence also includes a dishonorable discharge and loss of all pay and allowances. Miller said he fled to the East with the girl because of "unjust military treatment" in his Army unit. This, he said, included disapproval by his commanding officer of going with a German girl because he was already married.

Ammer Says Highway Death Problem Is Underestimated

Prosecutor Claims Student Training Programs Offer Strongest Hope Of Working Out Solution

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer said today that the problem of the nation's highway death toll "is far greater and much more serious than most people realize."

"It really comes down to a critical picture caused by the fact that we have too many cars on our highways—in Ohio and everywhere else," Ammer said. "And when you think that over—and see how the problem is steadily gaining on us, and how difficult it's going to be to solve—you begin to realize that it's a serious thing indeed."

Ammer's reasoning follows a growing trend of thought among the nation's foremost highway, traffic and safety planners. Gradually, over recent years, many top authorities on the subject of highway safety have expressed belief that the blame cannot be placed upon any one group, type of law violation or legal loophole.

A great many of these, such as authorities stress, certainly play an important part in the picture—such as drunk driving, speeding, failure to pass needed safety legislation, and the like. But all of these, serious as they are, remain secondary, the theory goes, alongside the "squeeze" between inadequate highways and a steady rise in the nation's motoring public.

AMMER, in line with this theory, pointed out how it has become quite common now for families to have two or even three cars. And how, at the same time, the natural trend of mechanical skill has been toward more powerful and faster automobiles—with particular appeal for an age that loves the thrill of speedy travel. Ammer emphasized that he does not mean that any of the aggravating factors—drunk driving, speeding, etc.—are to be minimized. Stronger penalties in some form or other, he said, are needed to control all of these.

But at the same time he warned that the problem will remain, and continue to grow, until Ohio and the rest of the nation step up highway construction to a degree ahead of the gain in motor traffic.

Perhaps the main hopes of averting a nationwide emergency, the prosecutor said, rest on the relatively new driving schools for high school students.

All possible emphasis, he said, should be turned toward the development of such schools so that the younger generation will be able to cope with the increased traffic problems ahead. Many more schools and many more students, he pointed out, would participate in such training—in Pickaway County and elsewhere—if qualified teachers and enough training cars were available.

Ammer recalled recent efforts to obtain more state support for the operation of student driver training. But he noted that the matter is one that only the legislature can handle.

LOCALLY, Ammer said he planned early next year to call a special conference of all law enforcement men and civic leaders to study the problem as it appears here. Because of its geographical "cross-roads" location in Ohio, it has frequently been claimed that Pickaway County's traffic problems are not to be measured by average standards.

Ammer was top leader here in organizing a nationwide safety program topped by President Eisenhower's own safety committee. Out of that move grew the present Pickaway County Traffic Safety Committee, but Ammer said that that group has been greatly handicapped by lack of funds.

"They have accomplished an awful lot in making the district safety-minded," the prosecutor said, "and they're trying to do a lot more. But you can't expect the committee to work miracles without a cent of money to keep it going."

The special conference he plans to call next year, Ammer explained, "will at least give us a consensus of how the local people feel about traffic safety."

Ammer's statement came shortly after the nation counted more than 600 traffic deaths over the Christmas week-end. And only a few days before another long week-end over New Year's threatens to renew what the National Safety Council has denounced as "mass mayhem."

Joe Palooka Comic Creator Is Suicide

NEW YORK (AP)—Ham Fisher, creator of the comic strip, Joe Palooka, was found dead last night in a friend's studio. Nearby were two notes indicating suicide, police reported.

Fisher, 54, wrote in the notes of failing eyesight and a diabetic condition. He said that he had swallowed some pills.

The body was discovered about 9 p. m. in the studio of Moe Leff, where Fisher had been working lately during his friend's absence from town. The discovery was made by another friend whom Fisher's wife Marilyn had called after becoming alarmed over not hearing from her husband.

Nehru Embarrassed By Soviet Leaders

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has sent to his Cabinet a formal note describing the speeches of Soviet leaders while on tour here as embarrassing to the Indian government.

The note was said to cite the "great difficulty," however, of taking any action to soft-pedal the speeches of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev, who used India platform to assail Western nations.

During their tour, despite India's avowed neutrality in the cold war, Bulganin and Khrushchev repeatedly blasted "Western colonialism," pro-Western pacts such as the SEATO and Baghdad alliances.

Ohio counted one of its worst traffic tolls over Christmas, and one of the deaths was reported from Pickaway County. This county has had 15 highway deaths so far in 1955. Fayette County has listed eight deaths this year in auto accidents.

IN THE way of enforcement under existing law, Ammer said he feels the State Highway Safety Council has not been using to full effect its authority to ask special examinations for individual drivers. Whenever the council's records indicate that any individual driver is not competent to drive, Ammer said, it can draw attention to the case by a report to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

A recheck on the motorist's ability could then be ordered.

Ammer stressed, however, that complaints must first be filed, usually with law enforcement agencies, which in turn make their information available to the state safety group.

As for the failure of the state legislature to pass more rigid highway safety regulations, Ammer said much of this is due to the fact that "individual members of the assembly—for reasons of their own—have just refused to go along with the legislation." Many of them, he explained, base their opposition upon the theory that "somebody is trying to restrain their rights."

"Then too," Ammer added, "there is undoubtedly a good bit of lobbying" by selfish groups, added to the stubborn attitude of some individual lawmakers.

3000 College Students At Athens Parley

ATHENS (AP)—Three thousand college students from some 75 nations gathered here today for the Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission.

Bearing the theme, "Revolution and Reconciliation," the conference will consider:

"What is the role of the church in a period of world revolution?" "How can Christians serve as instruments of God in revolt against tyranny and oppression?" "How can Christian students best witness to the reconciliation offered in Christ?"

Held every four years, the six-day conference is the 17th conducted by the Student Volunteer Movement of the National Council of Churches, the World Student Christian Movement and the United Student Christian Council.

Delegates, including 1,500 from the U. S., will meet in nine major sessions and smaller discussion groups during the week.

Today, they will hear the first of four daily addresses by the Rev. Richard Shaull, general secretary of the Brazilian Christian Student Movement.

The Students also will consider their role in the mission of the church. This will be taken up in 35 seminars based on the delegates' various localities and in vocational seminars dealing with 30 types of church service.

Job Replacement Record Expected

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today that by the end of this year it expects its jobless placement total to hit 520,000.

James R. Tichenor, acting administrator, said that will be the greatest number of placements ever made by the BUC's Employment Service Division in any peacetime year.

He said the only time the half-million mark had been exceeded was in the war years of 1943, 1944 and 1945 when Ohio joined the nation in an all-out war effort.

Biggest peacetime year for total placements was in 1953 when the employment division recorded 481,000 placements.

Lawmakers Put Boost Across On Third Try

City Safety Director Tells Council More About Amanda Bill

Mayor Bob Hedges indicated today that he may take steps to challenge a 100 percent salary increase which city council voted Tuesday night for its own members.

He said that "if they're going to raise their pay that much", he would favor instead a change to city manager government for Circleville. Although the city manager (or charter) form of government was turned down once by the voters here, the idea has been the subject of recurring discussions in official and civic circles.

The lawmakers voted, 5-2, to give themselves a pay boost only a few days prior to the end of the current term. Action came at a special meeting that was limited in scope to the pay increase.

Under provisions of the legislation, each of the councilmen and Council President Ben Gordon would have his salary doubled. Each of them now receives $300 a year.

HEDGES, learning of council's action, said he wanted to obtain legal advice before he decides what his role in the matter will be. Prior to the meeting, he had said he would "probably" sign the ordinance. But he made it clear Wednesday morning that he is now inclined to veto it.

The mayor pointed to several questionable points in connection with the legislation, and also to the fact that council for a long time has been "claiming it wants to save money". He mentioned in particular how police requests for more money have been rejected, and how council recently unveiled a plan to reduce the pay of city firemen.

"It was an awful thing for them to do," the mayor said. "I certainly don't think they should have done it just after an election. It doesn't seem right to me."

"If they're going to raise their pay that much, I'd be in favor of changing Circleville to the city manager form of government. After all, $600 a year for seven councilmen and the council president means $4,800 a year—and that would go a long way toward paying the salary of a city manager."

Later the mayor added: "I feel that anyone who serves on council should do it for the interests of the city and not for the sake of financial gain."

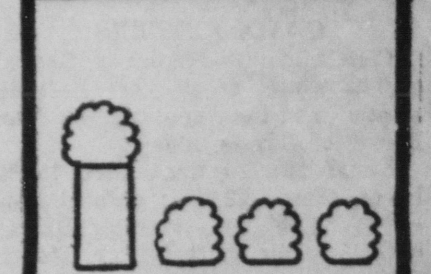

IN TOUCHING on the hazy legal status of the pay-boost legislation, the mayor said The Herald was correct in claiming that the ordinance—when it was first introduced the night of December 6—went to a final vote that same evening.

The Herald's account of that

"GLASS OF BEER WITH SET OF EXTRA HEADS"

An opening gambit to any courtship in New York (and probably in Yokohama too) is to ask the Young Lady out "for a drink." Unfortunately, I've found many Young Ladies think they're too sophisticated to enjoy a refreshing glass of beer and order expensive cocktails with fancy names like "Paradise Fizz" (a jigger of banana whiskey with a phenobarbital tablet floating in it) or "Shangri La Ambrosia" (2 ounces of fermented Yak milk with a dash of mayonnaise, on the rocks). However, these girls soon change their tune when I explain that I have a theory that couples should go "Dutch" because this gives the woman a feeling of independence. My theory is right too. Several girls have gotten so independent they punched me right in the nose.

Ammer Says Highway Death Problem Is Underestimated

Prosecutor Claims Student Training Programs Offer Strongest Hope Of Working Out Solution

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer said today that the problem of the nation's highway death toll "is far greater and much more serious than most people realize."

"It really comes down to a critical picture caused by the fact that we have too many cars on our highways—in Ohio and everywhere else," Ammer said. "And when you think that over—and see how the problem is steadily gaining on us, and how difficult it's going to be to solve—you begin to realize that it's a serious thing indeed."

Ammer's reasoning follows a growing trend of thought among the nation's foremost highway, traffic and safety planners. Gradually, over recent years, many top authorities on the subject of highway safety have expressed belief that the blame cannot be placed upon any one group, type of law violation or legal loophole.

A great many of these, such authorities stress, certainly play an important part in the picture—such as drunk driving, speeding, failure to pass needed safety legislation, and the like. But all of these, serious as they are, remain secondary, the theory goes, alongside the "squeeze" between inadequate highways and a steady rise in the nation's motoring public.

AMMER, in line with this theory, pointed out how it has become quite common now for families to have two or even three cars. And how, at the same time, the natural trend of mechanical skill has been toward more powerful and faster automobiles—with particular appeal for an age that loves the thrill of speedy travel. Ammer emphasized that he does not mean that any of the aggravating factors—drunk driving, speeding, etc.—are to be minimized. Stronger penalties in some form or other, he said, are needed to control all of these.

But at the same time he warned that the problem will remain, and continue to grow, until Ohio and the rest of the nation step up highway construction to a degree ahead of the gain in motor traffic.

Perhaps the main hopes of averting a nationwide emergency, the prosecutor said, rest on the relatively new driving schools for high school students.

All possible emphasis, he said, should be turned toward the development of such schools so that the younger generation will be able to cope with the increased traffic problems ahead. Many more schools and many more students, he pointed out, would participate in such training—in Pickaway County and elsewhere—if qualified teachers and enough training cars were available.

Ammer recalled recent efforts to obtain more state support for the operation of student driver training. But he noted that the matter is one that only the legislature can handle.

LOCALLY, Ammer said he planned early next year to call a special conference of all law enforcement men and civic leaders to study the problem as it appears here. Because of its geographical "cross-roads" location in Ohio, it has frequently been claimed that Pickaway County's traffic problems are not to be measured by average standards.

Ammer was top leader here in organizing a nationwide safety program topped by President Eisenhower's own safety committee. Out of that move grew the present Pickaway County Traffic Safety Committee, but Ammer said that that group has been greatly handicapped by lack of funds.

"They have accomplished an awful lot in making the district safety-minded," the prosecutor said, "and they're trying to do a lot more. But you can't expect the committee to work miracles without a cent of money to keep it going."

The special conference he plans to call next year, Ammer explained, "will at least give us a consensus of how the local people feel about traffic safety."

Ammer's statement came shortly after the nation counted more than 600 traffic deaths over the Christmas week-end. And only a few days before another long week-end over New Year's threatens to renew what the National Safety Council has denounced as "mass mayhem."

Joe Palooka Comic Creator Is Suicide

NEW YORK (AP)—Ham Fisher, creator of the comic strip, Joe Palooka, was found dead last night in a friend's studio. Nearby were two notes indicating suicide, police reported.

Fisher, 54, wrote in the notes of failing eyesight and a diabetic condition. He said that he had swallowed some pills.

The body was discovered about 9 p. m. in the studio of Moe Left, where Fisher had been working lately during his friend's absence from town. The discovery was made by another friend whom Fisher's wife Marilyn had called after becoming alarmed over not hearing from her husband.

Nehru Embarrassed By Soviet Leaders

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has sent to his Cabinet a formal note describing the speeches of Soviet leaders while on tour here as embarrassing to the Indian government.

The note was said to cite the "great difficulty" however, of taking any action to soft-pedal the speeches of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev, who used India platform to assail Western nations.

During their tour, despite India's avowed neutrality in the cold war, Bulganin and Khrushchev repeatedly blasted "Western colonialism," pro-Western pacts such as the SEATO and Baghdad alliances.

Ohio counted one of its worst traffic tolls over Christmas, and one of the deaths was reported from Pickaway County. This county has had 15 highway deaths so far in 1955. Fayette County has listed eight deaths this year in auto accidents.

IN THE way of enforcement under existing law, Ammer said he feels the State Highway Safety Council has not been using to full effect its authority to ask special examinations for individual drivers. Whenever the council's records indicate that any individual driver is not competent to drive, Ammer said, it can draw attention to the case by a report to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

A recheck on the motorist's ability could then be ordered.

Ammer stressed, however, that complaints must first be filed, usually with law enforcement agencies, which in turn make their information available to the state safety group.

As for the failure of the state legislature to pass more rigid highway safety regulations, Ammer said much of this is due to the fact that "individual members of the assembly—for reasons of their own—have just refused to go along with the legislation." Many of them, he explained, base their opposition upon the theory that "somebody is trying to restrain their rights."

"Then too," Ammer added, "there is undoubtedly a good bit of lobbying" by selfish groups, added to the stubborn attitude of some individual lawmakers.

3000 College Students At Athens Parley

ATHENS (AP)—Three thousand college students from some 75 nations gathered here today for the Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission.

Bearing the theme, "Revolution and Reconciliation," the conference will consider:

"What is the role of the church in a period of world revolution?" "How can Christians serve as instruments of God in revolt against tyranny and oppression?"

"How can Christian students best witness to the reconciliation offered in Christ?"

Held every four years, the six-day conference is the 17th conducted by the Student Volunteer Movement of the National Council of Churches, the World Student Christian Movement and the United Student Christian Council.

Delegates, including 1,500 from the U. S., will meet in nine major sessions and smaller discussion groups during the week.

Today, they will hear the first of four daily addresses by the Rev. Richard Shaull, general secretary of the Brazilian Christian Student Movement.

The Students also will consider their role in the mission of the church. This will be taken up in 35 seminars based on the delegates' various localities and in vocational seminars dealing with 30 types of church service.

Job Replacement Record Expected

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today that by the end of this year it expects its jobless placement total to hit 520,000.

James R. Tichenor, acting administrator, said that will be the greatest number of placements ever made by the BUC's Employment Service Division in any peacetime year.

He said the only time the half-million mark had been exceeded was in the war years of 1943, 1944 and 1945 when Ohio joined the nation in an all-out war effort.

Biggest peacetime year for total placements was in 1953 when the employment division recorded 481,000 placements.

Lawmakers Put Boost Across On Third Try

City Safety Director Tells Council More About Amanda Bill

Mayor Bob Hedges indicated today that he may take steps to challenge a 100 percent salary increase which city council voted Tuesday night for its own members.

He said that "if they're going to raise their pay that much," he would favor instead a change to city manager government for Circleville. Although the city manager (or charter) form of government was turned down once by the voters here, the idea has been the subject of recurrent discussions in official and civic circles.

The lawmakers voted, 5-2, to give themselves a pay boost only a few days prior to the end of the current term. Action came at a special meeting that was limited in scope to the pay increase.

Under provisions of the legislation, each of the councilmen and Council President Ben Gordon would have his salary doubled. Each of them now receives $300 a year.

HEDGES, learning of council's action, said he wanted to obtain legal advice before he decides what his role in the matter will be. Prior to the meeting, he had said he would "probably" sign the ordinance. But he made it clear Wednesday morning that he is now inclined to veto it.

The mayor pointed to several questionable points in connection with the legislation, and also to the fact that council for a long time has been "claiming it wants to save money." He mentioned in particular how police requests for more money have been rejected, and how council recently unveiled a plan to reduce the pay of city firemen.

"It was an awful thing for them to do," the mayor said. "I certainly don't think they should have done it just after an election. It doesn't seem right to me."

"If they're going to raise their pay that much, I'd be in favor of changing Circleville to the city manager form of government. After all, $600 a year for seven councilmen and the council president means $4,900 a year—and that would go a long way toward paying the salary of a city manager."

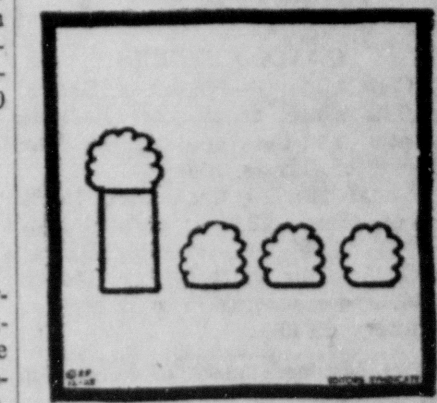

Later the mayor added: "I feel that anyone who serves on council should do it for the interests of the city and not for the sake of financial gain."

IN TOUCHING on the hazy legal status of the pay-boost legislation, the mayor said The Herald was correct in claiming that the ordinance—when it was first introduced the night of December 6—went to a final vote that same evening.

"GLASS OF BEER WITH SET OF EXTRA HEADS"

An opening gambit to any courtship in New York (and probably in Yokohama too) is to ask the Young Lady out "for a drink." Unfortunately, I've found many Young Ladies think they're too sophisticated to enjoy a refreshing glass of beer and order expensive cocktails with fancy names like "Paradise Fizz" (a jigger of banana whiskey with a phenobarbital tablet floating in it) or "Shangri La Ambrosia" (2 ounces of fermented Yak milk with a dash of mayonnaise, on the rocks). However, these girls soon change their tune when I explain that I have a theory that couples should go "Dutch" because this gives the woman a feeling of independence. My theory is right too. Several girls have gotten so independent they punched me right in the nose.

U. S. Senators Skeptical On Soviet 'Cuts'

'Large Gain Of Salt' Needed With Red Story On Military Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) said today "we shouldn't be taken in" by Russia's announced plans to cut its military budget by 10 per cent next year. "We must keep our defenses up," he cautioned.

Mansfield, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggested the development could mean a Soviet switch to heavier reliance on atomic power.

Several other senators of both political parties also were openly skeptical of Soviet intentions.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said he is "very skeptical that there is any truth in the statement that Russia is reducing her military expenditures by 10 per cent."

Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) said, "When I have proof, I'll believe it."

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) said he takes the Russian announcement "with a large grain of salt."

McClellan, Dworshak and Potter serve on the Senate Appropriations Committee.

THE SOVIET Parliament, meeting in Moscow, has been asked to approve a 1956 budget which provides for defense appropriations totaling 102½ billion rubles. This is nearly 10 per cent below the 1955 estimate of 112,122,000,000 rubles. Approval is a foregone conclusion.

Although the Russians peg the ruble at 25 cents, its purchasing power is considerably less.

The actual Russian military outlay is not fully reflected in its defense appropriations figure because many directly related items are hidden under other budget headings.

U. S. defense spending is at an annual rate of $34½ billion.

Mansfield said, "We not only have cut all we can afford to in our military spending, we have made some cuts we shouldn't afford."

Potter said the Russians' "public announcements and their actions are far different things," adding: "Our intelligence agencies tell us of a large buildup in their air force and their submarines, which doesn't seem to fit in well with a 10 per cent cut in their budget."

Ironically, the recovered car was found in the same vicinity. Police report that it had been stolen from Lancaster.

Police theorized that escapees from the Lancaster Boys Industrial School had apparently "traded off" cars here. Officer Rod List arrested one BIS escapee, 15, here Tuesday afternoon on Seyfert Ave., following a tip from a resident.

Lawmakers Put Boost Across On Third Try

meeting shows that both Councilmen John Robinson and Boyd Horn supported suspension of rules that night and then turned against the measure in the vote that followed.

However, when it was brought out again at the December 20 meeting, Gordon said he had been assured by Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas that the legislation had not passed suspension of the rules. Thus, Gordon explained at the time, it was able to stay alive for reconsideration at the following session.

Before giving this ruling, Gordon conferred with both Nicholas and Councilman Richard Penn. Regardless, the measure was beaten the night of December 20 just as it was defeated before—by the same 5-2 vote.

This margin of opposition, however, was not enough to stop the measure when it was brought up again at the special meeting Tuesday night. It was considered a "third reading."

Fine points of the law were visible around the edges as the municipal legislators prepared for the third vote. Councilman George Crites, chairman of council's finance committee, explained: "We don't want any hitch."

HE MADE the comment after reminding Nicholas that he would have to conform with a routine matter in connection with the legislation.

Council also had the ordinance amended to have it read that the legislation was "deemed to be an emergency . . . for immediate preservation of public peace, health, safety . . ." the customary phraseology used on all measures which are intended to go into effect without the usual 30-day waiting period.

Hence, the signature of Mayor Hedges would presumably put the pay increase into effect for the "new" council, which takes over control next Saturday midnight.

Hedges revealed early Tuesday that he had declined a request that he call the special meeting to consider the pay raise. It was disclosed Tuesday night that the session, subsequently was called at the request of Councilmen Harold Clifton, Penn and Crites.

When the pay raise ordinance came up on its first two readings, it was beaten each time by the "no" votes of Robinson and Horn. These two voted against the measure again on its third reading Tuesday night, but the remaining five votes were enough for passage on "third reading."

AFTER THE meeting, Horn declared he opposed the pay boost because "the more money the city pays out the more money the taxpayers have to pay." He warned that the city "will have to stop this yes-yes stuff" on proposed expenditures.

Before the vote was taken, Crites spoke briefly on why he felt the increase is justified. In doing so, he echoed many of the views voiced by other lawmakers in private discussions earlier.

Crites said: "I know it looks unusual for council to ask for a raise when the city is so short of funds. And I remember too how such a request has come up numerous times in the past, and how I have opposed all such moves up until now."

He then went on to point out how councilmen are expected to attend many meetings during the year and also take time from their businesses to handle other work in line with their councilmanic duties. Crites' reference to "meetings" was not meant to mean only the regular sessions of council.

Members of council during the year hold a number of special meetings and also are expected to attend a certain number of committee huddles. Likewise, it has been pointed out, the lawmakers many times have to inspect various projects, visit the scene of complaints, go to see residents in their ward, and otherwise handle work outside the regular sessions.

IN PREVIOUS discussions on this point it was emphasized that all such obligations, as a rule, mean time taken away from the councilman's regular business or the hours normally meant for relaxation.

"When you consider that the mayor gets $1,500 a year," Crites told his colleagues, "this (increase for council) isn't too much. Especially when you consider all that we are going to have to do in the coming year."

Crites, like other members of the lawmaking body, holds that councilmen can be expected to donate their services to the community—or provide them for a relatively small salary—"only up to a certain degree." He stressed: "A man doesn't mind doing this for awhile, but then after awhile he should be paid something near what his services are worth."

The vote which came a short time later was barely four days before the deadline for any such action by the "old" council. Council cannot vote itself a pay raise during its term of office. The new two-year term begins next Sunday.

A moment after the lawmakers adjourned their meeting, City Solicitor Director Miller Fissell arrived and asked for an opportunity to speak to the councilmen.

WHILE THEY listened in an informal group he told the lawmakers that he resented being "put on the spot" by an incident that occurred in council's last regular meeting. During the formal deliberations of that meeting, council was told that Fissell was not in favor of paying a bill presented to the Amanda Township fire department.

Tuesday night, Fissell said this could not have been true since, at the time the claim was made in council, he was not even aware of the Amanda Township bill existed. He reminded the lawmakers that he does not approve payment of bills until he has seen them, and that consequently it was unfair to blame him for something he had not done.

At the time the assertion was made publicly in council, the safety head declared, nobody had even mentioned the Amanda Township bill to him.

The Herald, the day after council's meeting, reported the statement made in council and also, in the same story, carried Fissell's denial.

It was not yet clear how the misunderstanding arose within the city departmental personnel.

Pappa Dionne Said Fibbing

Quint Says Family Rift Story Just Isn't True

MONTREAL (AP)—Yvonne Dionne, one of the four surviving quintuplets, denies that the famous sisters are "drifting" away from their family.

Olivia Dionne, the quint's father, said yesterday none of the four girls visited the family at their Callander, Ont., home or even sent cards at Christmas. It was the first Christmas the girls have spent away from home.

"We were not surprised when they did not come home," he said. "We have realized for some months that they have been drifting away from us. In fact, lately they have been treating their brothers and sisters almost with contempt."

Yvonne, a student nurse with her sister Cecile at a Montreal hospital, tearfully denied any rift. She sobbed:

"Don't believe it, it's not true. We sent a Christmas card. Is it our fault if they didn't get it?"

She added that they did not telephone their parents because "we were on duty. It's not easy, this job."

ANOTHER OF THE 21-year-old sisters, Marie, left a Quebec convent last November and went to the same hospital to be treated for overfatigue. Annette, who was studying art in Nicolet, Que., joined Marie in November after a landslide closed the school.

Yvonne said "Marie and Annette are supposed to be going home for New Year's. Cecile and I will be working."

The fifth quint, Emilie, died in August 1954, at St. Agathe, Que., from asphyxiation suffered during an epileptic attack.

Each of the four surviving sisters received more than $200,000 when they became 21 last May 28. The father blamed "outsiders" he would not identify for the alleged rift with his daughters.

Police said the stolen car was apparently taken between 11 p. m. Tuesday and 8 a. m. Wednesday from near the residence of the owner, George Gerhardt of 119 N. Washington St. Gerhardt is the outgoing city solicitor.

Ironically, the recovered car was found in the same vicinity. Police report that it had been stolen from Lancaster.

Police theorized that escapes from the Lancaster Boys Industrial School had apparently "traded off" cars here. Officer Rod List arrested one BIS escapee, 15, here Tuesday afternoon on Seyfert Ave., following a tip from a resident.

2 Small Girls Lost As Fire Hits Home

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two small girls died in a fire which destroyed their home in Euclid today, but their father was able to rescue his wife and two boys.

Mary Burns, 7, and her sister Rose, 4, burned to death.

Eugene Burns, 30, a plasterer, his wife Irene, also 30, and their sons Mike, 6, and Jack, 2, received minor injuries.

Police said the father was awakened by the flames, shoved his wife on to a porch roof, and pulled the two boys out of their bedroom. He attempted to go back after the girls, but could not.

Lawmakers Put Boost Across On Third Try

meeting shows that both Councilmen John Robinson and Boyd Horn supported suspension of rules that night and then turned against the measure in the vote that followed.

However, when it was brought out again at the December 20 meeting, Gordon said he had been assured by Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas that the legislation had not passed suspension of the rules. Thus, Gordon explained at the time, it was able to stay alive for reconsideration at the following session.

Before giving this ruling, Gordon conferred with both Nicholas and Councilman Richard Penn. Regardless, the measure was beaten the night of December 20 just as it was defeated before—by the same 5-2 vote.

This margin of opposition, however, was not enough to stop the measure when it was brought up again at the special meeting Tuesday night. It was considered a "third reading."

Fine points of the law were visible around the edges as the municipal legislators prepared for the third vote. Councilman George Crites, chairman of council's finance committee, explained: "We don't want any hitch."

HE MADE the comment after reminding Nicholas that he would have to conform with a routine matter in connection with the legislation.

Council also had the ordinance amended to have it read that the legislation was "deemed to be an emergency . . . for immediate preservation of public peace, health, safety . . ." the customary phraseology used on all measures which are intended to go into effect without the usual 30-day waiting period.

Hence, the signature of Mayor Hedges would presumably put the pay increase into effect for the "new" council, which takes over control next Saturday midnight.

Hedges revealed early Tuesday that he had declined a request that he call the special meeting to consider the pay raise. It was disclosed Tuesday night that the session, subsequently was called at the request of Councilmen Harold Clifton, Penn and Crites.

When the pay raise ordinance came up on its first two readings, it was beaten each time by the "no" votes of Robinson and Horn. These two voted against the measure again on its third reading Tuesday night, but the remaining five votes were enough for passage on "third reading."

AFTER THE meeting, Horn declared he opposed the pay boost because "the more money the city pays out the more money the taxpayers have to pay." He warned that the city "will have to stop this yes-yes stuff" on proposed expenditures.

Before the vote was taken, Crites spoke briefly on why he felt the increase is justified. In doing so, he echoed many of the views voiced by other lawmakers in private discussions earlier.

Crites said: "I know it looks unusual for council to ask for a raise when the city is so short of funds. And I remember too how such a request has come up numerous times in the past, and how I have opposed all such moves up until now."

He then went on to point out how councilmen are expected to attend many meetings during the year and also take time from their businesses to handle other work in line with their councilmanic duties. Crites' reference to "meetings" was not meant to mean only the regular sessions of council.

Members of council during the year hold a number of special meetings and also are expected to attend a certain number of committee huddles. Likewise, it has been pointed out, the lawmakers many times have to inspect various projects, visit the scene of complaints, go to see residents in their ward, and otherwise handle work outside the regular sessions.

IN PREVIOUS discussions on this point it was emphasized that all such obligations, as a rule, mean time taken away from the councilman's regular business or the hours normally meant for relaxation.

"When you consider that the mayor gets $1,500 a year," Crites told his colleagues, "this (increase for council) isn't too much. Especially when you consider all that we are going to have to do in the coming year."

Crites, like other members of the lawmaking body, holds that councilmen can be expected to donate their services to the community—or provide them for a relatively small salary—"only up to a certain degree". He stressed: "A man doesn't mind doing this for awhile, but then after awhile he should be paid something near what his services are worth."

The vote which came a short time later was barely four days before the deadline for any such action by the "old" council. Council cannot vote itself a pay raise during its term of office. The new two-year term begins next Sunday. A moment after the lawmakers adjourned their meeting, City Safety Director Miller Fissell arrived and asked for an opportunity to speak to the councilmen.

WHILE THEY listened in an informal group he told the lawmakers that he resented being "put on the spot" by an incident that occurred in council's last regular meeting. During the formal deliberations of that meeting, council was told that Fissell was not in favor of paying a bill presented to council by the Amanda Township fire department.

Tuesday night, Fissell said this could not have been true since, at the time the claim was made in council, he was not even aware the Amanda Township bill existed. He reminded the lawmakers that he does not approve payment of bills until he has seen them, and that consequently it was unfair to blame him for something he had not done.

At the time the assertion was made publicly in council, the safety head declared, nobody had even mentioned the Amanda Township bill to him.

The Herald, the day after council's meeting, reported the statement made in council and also, in the same story, carried Fissell's denial.

It was not yet clear how the misunderstanding arose within the city departmental personnel.

Pappa Dionne Said Fibbing

Quint Says Family Rift Story Just Isn't True

MONTREAL (AP)—Yvonne Dionne, one of the four surviving quintuplets, denies that the famous sisters are "drifting" away from their family.

Olivia Dionne, the quint's father, said yesterday none of the four girls visited the family at their Callander, Ont., home or even sent cards at Christmas. It was the first Christmas the girls have spent away from home.

"We were not surprised when they did not come home," he said. "We have realized for some months that they have been drifting away from us. In fact, lately they have been treating their brothers and sisters almost with contempt."

Yvonne, a student nurse with her sister Cecile at a Montreal hospital, tearfully denied any rift. She sobbed:

"Don't believe it, it's not true. We sent a Christmas card. Is it our fault if they didn't get it?"

She added that they did not telephone their parents because "we were on duty. It's not easy, this job."

ANOTHER OF THE 21-year-old sisters, Marie, left a Quebec convent last November and went to the same hospital to be treated for overfatigue. Annette, who was studying art in Nicolet, Que., joined Marie in November after a landslide closed the school.

Yvonne said "Marie and Annette are supposed to be going home for New Year's. Cecile and I will be working."

The fifth quint, Emilie, died in August 1954, at St. Agathe, Que., from asphyxiation suffered during an epileptic attack.

Each of the four surviving sisters received more than $200,000 when they became 21 last May 28. The father blamed "outsiders" he would not identify for the alleged rift with his daughters.

Big Headache Envisioned By Election Chiefs

What If Lausche Ends Up Listed Candidate For Two Offices?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio election officials figure a kingsize headache lurks in next year's U. S. Senatorial contest.

They don't mean the lumps Democrat Gov. Frank J. Lausche and GOP Sen. George H. Bender may get in their expected clash. Neither is expected to have opposition for nomination in the May 8 primaries.

What concerns officials is the possibility Lausche might wind up on Nov. 8 election ballots as a candidate for President or vice president and for senator simultaneously.

Election experts say Ohio statutes would not ban such a possibility if it developed despite adverse odds. They toyed with this situation:

Lausche, a presidential "favorite son" candidate, might win the No. 1 or 2 nominations at the Democratic National Convention opening in Chicago next Aug. 13. But nomination might come too late for him to withdraw his name from Ohio ballots as a candidate for senator.

Qualified candidates must withdraw prior to the 80th day before the general election to have their names removed from November ballots. That date will be Aug. 17 next year. A vacancy created by withdrawal before the deadline would be filled by the party state central committee.

Democratic leaders have expressed belief Lausche stands his best chance for presidential or vice presidential nomination if a deadlock develops in the Chicago convention.

A deadlock might delay a possible Lausche nomination past Aug. 17, making it impossible for Lausche to get his name off the Ohio ballot as a candidate for senator.

In that event, he would appear on ballots simultaneously as a convention-picked nominee for President or vice president and a self-nominated candidate for senator nominated in Ohio's May primary if unopposed.

With Lausche's vote-getting ability officials wondered whether he might possibly win election to both offices next November in Ohio voting although he could qualify for only one post. They said that would present this picture:

Ohio's new governor elected next November would not take office until Jan. 9, 1957. But Bender's present term as senator will expire Jan. 3, 1957.

If Lausche got more votes than Bender for senator, even though he also was a winning convention nominee, Bender could not be declared re-elected senator.

Lausche still would be governor on Jan. 3. Officials said he apparently could declare the senatorial seat vacant and fill it with an interim appointment as he did after Sen. Robert A. Taft's death. Such an appointee would serve for two years instead of the full six-year senatorial term.

Presidential and vice presidential winners do not take office until Jan. 20, 1957.

Officials figure the odds against such good fortune for Lausche are overwhelming but they cannot help but wonder whether the Lausche luck might hold in a political situation where anything could happen.

Youngsters Rescue Buried Playmate

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP)—Digging with their hands, four youngsters Tuesday rescued a 12-year-old playmate trapped under three tons of dirt in a cave in the Santa Ana River wash.

Sheriff's deputies said Darrell Rogers was standing near the entrance to a homemade cave when it collapsed. Immediately his brother Clyde, 15, Irving Clark, 14, Robert Ielss, 12, and his brother Clyde, 9, began digging. They freed their playmate's head so he was able to breathe.

The boy was taken to county hospital in critical condition with

Fire Chief Warns This Is Time For Special Care Of Heaters

Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise cautioned local residents today that the cold weather seasons are the time of year when the three H's — heaters, hearth fires and heating systems—have to be given close attention to prevent fires.

The dangers, he explained, are obvious, since each of the three involves live flame or very high temperatures. One — space heaters—often involves the use of flammable liquids. "These warnings about this time-of-year get to be pretty routine for most people," Wise commented, "and far too many just won't give them a second glance."

"Yet, by taking this advice now, it's for sure that many homes will avoid damage and maybe even loss of life before the end of 1956."

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a single girl, 30 years of age, neither very attractive nor extremely ugly. Although I have a college education and am rather well informed concerning human relations, I am extremely shy and inexpressive. This poses a broad social problem, which also has its specific worrisome aspects.

I am employed by a large corporation, where the female employees in my department spend much of their free time — during lunch and coffee breaks—in groups discussing men, dates, parties and such.

Inasmuch as I am not usually invited to parties and have never had a date, I am becoming increasingly frightened by these conversations and don't know how to participate in them. Conversely, as the girls are mostly friendly and affable, it is almost impossible to avoid these sessions without appearing rude.

H. A.

DEAR H. A.: It seems to me that you are making a problem of what could be an opportunity, if you don't try to deceive anybody. From what you say, I gather you are an average girl, who somehow never got a break in the dating field. Which puts you near the foot of the class, in social experience for your age.

But now, in daily association with these friendly co-workers, who readily include you in their gabfests about dates, parties, men, etc., you have a chance to learn much that you need to know. However, in order to utilize this opportunity, you've first got to dispose of some neurotic blocks that are giving you trouble, unconsciously.

Significantly you report: "I am becoming increasingly frightened by these conversations and don't know how to participate in them."

I think this panicky state isn't altogether due to your not knowing what to say (owing to inexperience). More probably it reflects growing pressure of anxious tension, linked to a frustrating complex of misconceptions about sex and social relationships, ingrained by early training—and now "stirred up" by the girls' conversational preoccupation with boy-girl activities.

Poise Path Easy

The gist of the disturbance probably is that (1) you long for normal emotional fulfillment, for its own sake, not simply as a talking-point; but (2) you have a defeatist sense that the good life of abundant satisfactions is not for you. Hence the strain of associating with girls who apparently aren't stymied seems almost unbearable to you at times. Perhaps you have moments of feeling that your existence is "unreal" as compared to theirs.

To relieve this type of distress, you will need psychiatric help—which is plentifully available in the city through which you write. Then as you become better integrated emotionally—more aware of your natural hungers and fears and your basic likeness to other people—you will be at once more comfortably self-accepting, and more at ease in group discussions.

As you proceed gradually along those lines, you don't mind putting your cards on the table, with some of the girls. And as they get to know you well and affectionately, they probably will take your needs to heart and lend a hand in pepping up your social life—to give you a chance at dates and parties and camaraderie with men friends.

Ohio Correction Chief Sees Reduction In State Staff

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—About 96 persons will lose their jobs or be transferred to part-time work at three state institutions caring for juvenile offenders, Dr. John D. Porterfield said today.

The director of the state department of mental hygiene and correction said a combination of financial factors will make the reduction in personnel necessary, effective Jan. 1.

The three institutions are, the Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster; Girls' Industrial School, Delaware; and the Juvenile Diagnostic Center, Columbus. The three are administered by the division of juvenile research, classification and training.

"At the present level of spending for personal (sic) services in the juvenile division," Porterfield said in a statement, "there would be a deficit of $150,000 on June 30, 1956."

The Legislature appropriated $2,040,591 to the division for salaries, he said. This amount "little more than covered the number of employees on the payroll at the beginning of the fiscal year and the automatic general increases effective July 1, 1955."

At that time the division had 632 employees. On Dec. 1 it had 625 employees, he said. When the Legislature revised salary rates upward, effective Oct. 1, it cost the division $122,000. The balance of appropriated funds covered less than 30 per cent of this increase, Porterfield said.

Another $85,000 will be lost to the division due to the department's change from a net to a gross method of payment of salaries, he added.

"Money which is paid by employees for board and room no longer accrues to the salary account of the division," Porterfield explained. Previously employees drew their food from the institutions' food allotments in return for salary deductions.

The change was made to insure that patients and inmates of the department's institutions receive the entire food allocation, he said.

"Approximately 96 employees will be involved in the cutback," the director continued. "This will include the placing of some positions on a part-time basis. The division is completing plans for determining what program and positions will be affected. . . ."

"Civil Service procedures will be followed in reducing the number of employees. . . every effort will be made to reduce the staff in a manner that will least affect the 24-hour care, diagnosis and treatment program at the institutions."

Porterfield noted that the number of girls received at the Juvenile Diagnostic Center will be reduced. Only boys and girls under age 15 will be received after Jan. 1, he said.

Big Headache Envisioned By Election Chiefs

What If Lausche Ends Up Listed Candidate For Two Offices?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio election officials figure a kingsize headache lurks in next year's U. S. Senatorial contest.

They don't mean the lumps Democrat Gov. Frank J. Lausche and GOP Sen. George H. Bender may get in their expected clash. Neither is expected to have opposition for nomination in the May 8 primaries.

What concerns officials is the possibility Lausche might wind up on Nov. 8 election ballots as a candidate for President or vice president and for senator simultaneously.

Election experts say Ohio statutes would not ban such a possibility if it developed despite adverse odds. They toyed with this situation:

Lausche, a presidential "favorite son" candidate, might win the No. 1 or 2 nominations at the Democratic National Convention opening in Chicago next Aug. 13. But nomination might come too late for him to withdraw his name from Ohio ballots as a candidate for senator.

Qualified candidates must withdraw prior to the 80th day before the general election to have their names removed from November ballots. That date will be Aug. 17 next year. A vacancy created by withdrawal before the deadline would be filled by the party state central committee.

Democratic leaders have expressed belief Lausche stands his best chance for presidential or vice presidential nomination if a deadlock develops in the Chicago convention.

A deadlock might delay a possible Lausche nomination past Aug. 17, making it impossible for Lausche to get his name off the Ohio ballot as a candidate for senator.

In that event, he would appear on ballots simultaneously as a convention-picked nominee for President or vice president and a self-nominated candidate for senator nominated in Ohio's May primary if unopposed.

With Lausche's vote-getting ability officials wondered whether he might possibly win election to both offices next November in Ohio voting although he could qualify for only one post. They said that would present this picture:

Ohio's new governor elected next November would not take office until Jan. 9, 1957. But Bender's present term as senator will expire Jan. 3, 1957.

If Lausche got more votes than Bender for senator, even though he also was a winning convention nominee, Bender could not be declared re-elected senator.

Lausche still would be governor on Jan. 3. Officials said he apparently could declare the senatorial seat vacant and fill it with an interim appointment as he did after Sen. Robert A. Taft's death. Such an appointee would serve for two years instead of the full six-year senatorial term.

Presidential and vice presidential winners do not take office until Jan. 20, 1957.

Officials figure the odds against such good fortune for Lausche are overwhelming but they cannot help but wonder whether the Lausche luck might hold in a political situation where anything could happen.

Youngsters Rescue Buried Playmate

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP)—Digging with their hands, four youngsters Tuesday rescued a 12-year-old playmate trapped under three tons of dirt in a cave in the Santa Ana River wash.

Sheriff's deputies said Darrell Rogers was standing near the entrance to a homemade cave when it collapsed. Immediately his brother Clyde, 15, Irving Clark, 14, Robert Iells, 12, and his brother Clyde, 9, began digging. They freed their playmate's head so he was able to breathe.

The boy was taken to county hospital in critical condition with

Fire Chief Warns This Is Time For Special Care Of Heaters

Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise cautioned local residents today that the cold weather seasons are the time of year when the three H's — heaters, hearth fires and heating systems—have to be given close attention to prevent fires.

The dangers, he explained, are obvious, since each of the three involves live flame or very high temperatures. One — space heaters—often involves the use of flammable liquids. "These warnings about this time of year get to be pretty routine for most people," Wise commented, "and far too many just won't give them a second glance."

"Yet, by taking this advice now, it's for sure that many homes will avoid damage and maybe even loss of life before the end of 1956."

Faulty Fuse Halts Mine Tiptple Blast

NEW PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Had it not been for a faulty fuse, 45 sticks of dynamite would have exploded at the Heltzer Coal Co. mine tippie during a labor dispute earlier this year Sheriff King Hiller revealed yesterday.

Hiller said a truck driver, H. F. Dunn of Uhrichsville, discovered the bundle of dynamite sticks last Sunday after he saw the fuse lying across the mine road. Investigation showed about 20 feet of a 50-foot fuse burned before the fire reached the bad splice.

The Heltzer mine was picketed last March, April and May while the United Mine Workers were trying to organize the employees there.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a single girl, 30 years of age, neither very attractive nor extremely ugly. Although I have a college education and am rather well informed concerning human relations, I am extremely shy and inexpressive. This poses a broad social problem, which also has its specific worrisome aspects.

I am employed by a large corporation, where the female employees in my department spend much of their free time — during lunch and coffee breaks—in groups discussing men, dates, parties and such.

Inasmuch as I am not usually invited to parties and have never had a date, I am becoming increasingly frightened by these conversations and don't know how to participate in them. Conversely, as the girls are mostly friendly and affable, it is almost impossible to avoid these sessions without appearing rude.

DEAR H. A.: It seems to me that you are making a problem of what could be an opportunity, if you don't try to deceive anybody. From what you say, I gather you are an average girl, who somehow never got a break in the dating field. Which puts you near the foot of the class, in social experience for your age.

But now, in daily association with these friendly co-workers, who readily include you in their gabfests about dates, parties, men, etc., you have a chance to learn much that you need to know. However, in order to utilize this opportunity, you've first got to dispose of some neurotic blocks that are giving you trouble, unconsciously.

Significantly you report: "I am becoming increasingly frightened by these conversations and don't know how to participate in them."

Ohio Correction Chief Sees Reduction In State Staff

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—About 96 persons will lose their jobs or be transferred to part-time work at three state institutions caring for juvenile offenders, Dr. John D. Porterfield said today.

The director of the state department of mental hygiene and correction said a combination of financial factors will make the reduction in personnel necessary, effective Jan. 1.

The three institutions are the Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster; Girls' Industrial School, Delaware; and the Juvenile Diagnostic Center, Columbus. The three are administered by the division of juvenile research, classification and training.

ered less than 30 per cent of this increase, Porterfield said.

Another $85,000 will be lost to the division due to the department's change from a net to a gross method of payment of salaries, he added.

"Money which is paid by employees for board and room no longer accrues to the salary account of the division," Porterfield explained. Previously employees drew their food from the institutions' food allotments in return for salary deductions.

The change was made to insure that patients and inmates of the department's institutions receive the entire food allocation, he said.

"Approximately 96 employees will be involved in the cutback," the director continued. "This will include the placing of some positions on a part-time basis. The division is completing plans for determining what program and positions will be affected."

"Civil Service procedures will be followed in reducing the number of employees. . . every effort will be made to reduce the staff in a manner that will least affect the 24-hour care, diagnosis and treatment program at the institutions."

Porterfield noted that the number of girls received at the Juvenile Diagnostic Center will be reduced. Only boys and girls under age 15 will be received after Jan. 1, he said.

To relieve this type of distress, you will need psychiatric help—which is plentifully available in the city through which you write.

Then as you become better integrated emotionally—more aware of your natural hungers and fears and your basic likeness to other people—you will be at once more comfortably self-accepting, and more at ease in group discussions.

As you proceed gradually along those lines, you don't mind putting your cards on the table, with some of the girls. And as they get to know you well and affectionately, they probably will take your needs to heart and lend a hand in pepping up your social life—to give you a chance at dates and parties and camaraderie with men friends.

LEGION CHILDREN'S AID

IN THESE DAYS of large government programs for child welfare, it is easy to forget that much is done by private groups. One of these is the American Legion which has just issued its "1956 Platform" for its National Child Welfare Division. This gains importance with the realization that in the past 30 years the American Legion with its affiliated organizations, the Legion Auxiliary, the 40 & 8 and the 8 & 40, have spent more than $125 million in emergency financial aid to buy food, clothing, and medical care for the needy children of veterans.

In its platform the Legion wisely explains that its efforts are first directed to veterans' children but also include all children. In the past it has pushed for legislation for streamlining probate procedures, adoption and guardianship laws, and juvenile court procedures as well as aid to mothers and services to keep homes together in times of stress.

The platform calls for action on juvenile delinquency, old age and survivors insurance, aid to dependent children, mental and physical health, the mentally retarded children's group, and strengthening family life. Each section contains specific recommendations and not merely generalities.

The Legion's Child Welfare program is worthy of the interest and support of every citizen.

IT STUMPS THEM

COLORADO crash of an airliner following a baggage compartment explosion that killed 44 persons is still furrowing the brows of those responsible for air safety. A Denver man is accused of smuggling a bomb aboard so he could collect the insurance on his mother.

It is proposed that airplane builders reinforce luggage compartments so that an explosion would do only minor damage and not result in a disaster. Builders say, however, that armor-plating a plane would add too much weight and sacrifice too much speed.

Insurance companies have been asked to revise their policies in some such way as to discourage criminals. The companies say they are willing but they have not found any way that promises to be effective.

Another line of inquiry concerns the feasibility of putting all luggage on a conveyor belt and running it through a device that would detect a bomb. This has brought several offers to supply such devices. Air safety experts are not certain they would work.

Since America has a way of solving its problems with gadgets, the detecting device approach seems the most promising one.

SHORTAGE OF TAILORS

TAILORING IS among the trades suffering from an inadequate number of apprentices. Custom tailors fear that in another decade or two custom-made suits of clothes may be non-existent and the male will find it difficult to find someone to make alterations to a suit, if he still wears one.

Several Chicago tailors have decided to do something about the shortage of tailors. An organization — the National Hand Tailoring Institute — has been formed to attempt to attract more young men to the tailor's bench. Arthur B. Duffy, president,

These Days

Now that the Era of Smiles has gently passed away and the Cold War has been restored in all its fierceness and vulgarity, the question of security will arise afresh, because one of the enemy's methods in this Cold War is to weaken us by propaganda and infiltration.

There are agencies of government which have to do with security and which therefore stand in the way of those who believe that war is worse than the universalism which the Kremlin seeks to establish.

Charles P. Curtis made the point in a "Saturday Review" article: "...to begin with... the people who are administering our security system have not had the benefit of being watched..." This is a smart, sharp way of saying something that is not true. If it is the FBI to which he refers, then, of course, that agency is watched by Congress, which is the only constitutional body to watch it.

Annually, the FBI makes its report and comes up for appropriations. In addition, the FBI is subordinate to the Department of Justice which scrutinizes its conduct. In addition, FBI matters are constantly before the Courts which have an opportunity to look into its processes.

The assumption that it is possible for a police agency to open its files to every Tom, Dick and Harry is fallacious because then no police agency could exist and we might as well settle down to anarchy.

It is no secret that at the recently organized Commission on Government Security, some members expressed themselves on the subject of security and the FBI which definitely gave the impression to other members that what the new Commission might be designed to discover is not whether we are going about our security correctly but whether we ought not to kill off any program of security.

It is also no secret that the House Committee on Un-American Activities has become soft on security out of resentment over J. Edgar Hoover's testimony concerning Harry Dexter White.

From this standpoint, it is all right for the FBI or a Congressional Committee to investigate a misguided actor or writer or scientist but it becomes a major crime when the investigation leads to an accused spy like Harry Dexter White, who also happened to be a high official in a Democratic Administration.

There can be no logical, realistic program of security so long as Sam Rayburn's decision is that politics comes first and that the House Committee on Un-American Activities must not employ counsel who may not be interested in party politics.

If the objection is to the Passport Office, then a program ought to be devised and passed by Congress stipulating by law who is entitled to a passport and who is not. At the present time, the Passport Office is governed by a regulation set up by Dean Acheson when he was Secretary of State.

The validity of this regulation has been disputed by Judge Luther Youngdahl. So far as one can judge, from my point of view, the Acheson regulation is an excellent guide to follow. Apparently the present counsel of the State Department, Herman Phleger, does not think so because he does not risk taking his cases up to the Supreme Court for decision.

says hand tailoring is a noncompetitive field offering good jobs for qualified men.

But unless more apprentices take up tailoring, an old art may be lost, he said. The shortage of tailors affects the ready-to-wear industry because manufacturers need tailors as designers, and tailors are needed in retail stores for alteration and repair work.

In the past the majority of tailors came from abroad, but Duffy sees no solution to the shortage unless American born men are now induced to enter the field.

Women Buy Most Neckties

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his morning mail: That some 75 million neckties were sold during the Christmas season and 85 per cent were bought by women.

That neckties run from 47 to 54 inches long, but the average is 50 inches.

That a survey estimated U. S. men lost $48 million from their pockets each year including $6 million in taxes. But no one knows the staggering amount that wives take out of those same pockets overnight.

That 78 per cent of all highway accidents occur in clear weather and 20 per cent of the nation's drivers cause 80 per cent of the accidents.

That school children are getting stronger. To be sure a new-type school desk would stand up under juvenile squirming, it was tested by being hit 30,000 times with a 40-pound sandbag.

That there are about 250,000 vice presidents in U. S. industry (is that all? why then didn't even outnumber bird watchers?), and the Bank of America is the corporate leader with 146.

That a majority of pipe smokers honestly believe that most "sensible women" find them more attractive than men who don't smoke a pipe. But what ever happened to all the girls who took up the smoking of pipes a year ago?

That much of the bad temper in business offices results from "visual commutitis," a term the National Assn. for the Prevention of Blindness has coined to describe the eye strain suffered by commuters who read on jogging trains and buses.

That some 100,000 children will have suffered eye accidents by the end of 1955. Now is the time to get rid of any sharp-pointed toys your children got for Christmas.

That if you made good grades in school but later in life failed to make as much money as you think you should have you are a good candidate for an ulcer complex.

That seniors in engineering schools now receive an average of four to five job offers before they receive their diplomas.

That today there are three women clerical workers in American business offices to every man. If you want to meet the other sex on company time, girls, get a job in a factory.

That Raymond Massey is credited with the observation, "most of our suspicions of others are aroused by our knowledge of ourselves."

That now is a good time to post those Christmas cards your wife gave you to mail two weeks ago.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
IF JEMMY had actually come upon his father in a love scene with Morgan Channing in the woods, if he had told his mother innocently enough—that had this knowledge meant to Virginia? Lora crossed the room to French doors that opened upon a little side veranda, and stood looking out upon whipping branches and dry leaves tumbling across the yard. This house, tucked against the hillside, had some shelter, but how wild and windy it must be today up on Morgan's hilltop.

The thoughts swept back, engulfing her. Serena had said there had been some whisper of suicide. But she wouldn't, she mustn't think of that. How terrible would then be the blame heaped upon Wade. Had Jemmy told his father? She wondered. Did Wade dream of what Virginia knew? Lora was sure that whatever had happened had been Morgan's doing, yet Wade could not be completely exonerated. If this was the burden he carried in secret—the fear that his wife, because of his own action—

No wonder he detested Morgan, did not trust her. But surely Virginia must have known what her sister was like. Surely she would have put no stock in Jemmy's words. Not that she was so confident and sure of Wade's devotion.

Or had she been? What depth of attraction existed between Wade and Morgan to have burned anew after the passing of so many years? Had it perhaps never died out entirely?

Carriage wheels crunched upon the drive. That must be Wade now, coming home. She ran up stairs to her own room. Not until she had sorted these troubling thoughts into some semblance of order could she face him again. He must not read this guilty knowledge in her eyes.

After dinner that night Mrs. Tyler summoned Ellie to her room to assist her into the wheel chair for the first time in weeks. She ordered a fire built in her sitting-room grate and had herself wheeled into the dining-room where she could see exactly what vandal's act had taken place behind her back. Having looked at the substitute picture, she sent for Wade, lectured him thoroughly and then asked for Lora.

Lora had been pretending to read in the library when Wade came to fetch her. The look on his face as he came in was reassuring.

"What on earth have you done to mother?" he asked. "She ate a whopping good dinner in her room and now she's ready to lick her weight in wildcats. She seems to be spitting mad at you and enjoying life thoroughly."

Lora released her breath in a long sigh. "Thank goodness! All I did was give her a good back rub, bully her a little, and tell her if she wanted to run this house her own way she'd have to get up and do it."

"Well, she's up—and you're in for it," Wade said. "She wants to talk to you right now. And I'm coming along to watch. But don't count on any help from me. This is your party."

"I have been in the dining-room," Mrs. Tyler announced, "and I have seen that ridiculous print you've put in place of the excellent game painting which hung there before. I will not have three such smirking ninnies looking down at me from my dining room wall."

Lora said mildly, "It was the best Jemmy and I could find."

"Well, it won't do. On your next shopping trip to New York I shall expect you to get something more suitable in the way of flowers and fruit."

"Yes, Mother," Lora said, her lips twitching.

"Mind you, that game bird painting is a fine one. My husband paid a large sum for it. It was the sort of thing he liked. But by this time I believe it has earned its worth in service. As a matter of fact, I always detested the thing. But I do not like to see good money wasted."

She said nothing at all about Jemmy's dog. Indeed, there was no mention of it then, or at any time in the next few weeks. Mrs. Tyler's recent illness was ignored by herself and never mentioned by other members of the household.

The only difference from the old life was that sometime during each day Lora went down to the old lady's room and gave her a vigorous alcohol rub. There was little conversation between them during these occasions. Weak flesh surrendered to ministering hands, and for that little while there was no question about who was in control. At all other times, however, Mrs. Tyler was again herself, despotic and demanding. But Lora no longer felt the sting. She had some how placed herself beyond the reach of Mother Tyler's whiplash.

Some Helpful Hints For "Shoppers Feet"

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOW that your Christmas shopping is over, you might well start thinking about the calluses it may have left.

Many of you won't have to worry, however. Like corns, calluses usually are caused by long and continued pressure or friction. Also, like soft corns, they tend to disappear once the cause is removed. But some are more stubborn and therefore need specific treatment.

For Long Periods

If your feet remain callused for any length of time, even after you have stopped standing or walking for long periods and have replaced any tight-fitting shoes, you had better consult an orthopedic surgeon. He probably will advise irradiation as one of the quickest and best methods of getting rid of the calluses.

Before treatment, the callus should be trimmed as thin as possible. The thickened skin acts as a filter and a considerable portion of the dosage can be absorbed by the callus.

Mild Irradiation
Unless treated, repeated irritation might cause mild inflammation of the callused area. If you've had calluses you must guard against their return. Proper care of your feet, including frequent bathing, careful drying and powdering are essential.

And if it is at all possible, I advise changing your shoes and stockings at least once and better still two or three times a day. If you have weak or deformed feet or have to stand a good deal, you will find this especially helpful.

I know many of you won't be able to follow all of these suggestions, but you can at least do the next best thing. When you get home from a busy day, take off your shoes, change your socks and don your well-fitting slippers. Not only will this help your feet, it will also help relax your entire body.

Try, Stop Me

Some of those busy Madison Avenue executives you read about have found a new way to keep their brains from going rusty: trying to list twelve cities outside the United States, all beginning with the letter "M," and all having a population of over half a million. Can you name all twelve?

Here they are: Madrid, Mar-seilles, Moscow, Manchester, Munich, Milan, Montreal, Mexico City, Montevideo, Madras, Mukden, and Melbourne. (It's "Mukden" that stumps most contestants.)

Kermit Schaffer reports the sad plight of a disc jockey who made three successive attempts, all of which failed, to say correctly "tickled pink." First it came out "Tickled pick," then "pickled tick," and finally "pickled tink."

"Sympathy," observes Mary McBride, "is what one gal is willing to give in exchange for all the gory details."

LEGION CHILDREN'S AID

IN THESE DAYS of large governmental programs for child welfare, it is easy to forget that much is done by private groups.

One of these is the American Legion which has just issued its "1956 Platform" for its National Child Welfare Division. This gains importance with the realization that in the past 30 years the American Legion with its affiliated organizations, the Legion Auxiliary, the 40 & 8 and the 8 & 40, have spent more than $125 million in emergency financial aid to buy food, clothing, and medical care for the needy children of veterans.

In its platform the Legion wisely explains that its efforts are first directed to veterans' children but also include all children. In the past it has pushed for legislation for streamlining probate procedures, adoption and guardianship laws, and juvenile court procedures as well as aid to mothers and services to keep homes together in times of stress.

The platform calls for action on juvenile delinquency, old age and survivors insurance, aid to dependent children, mental and physical health, the mentally retarded children's group, and strengthening family life. Each section contains specific recommendations and not merely generalities.

The Legion's Child Welfare program is worthy of the interest and support of every citizen.

IT STUMPS THEM

COLORADO crash of an airliner following a baggage compartment explosion that killed 44 persons is still furrowing the brows of those responsible for air safety. A Denver man is accused of smuggling a bomb aboard so he could collect the insurance on his mother.

It is proposed that airplane builders reinforce luggage compartments so that an explosion would do only minor damage and not result in a disaster. Builders say, however, that armor-plating a plane would add too much weight and sacrifice too much speed.

Insurance companies have been asked to revise their policies in some such way as to discourage criminals. The companies say they are willing but they have not found any way that promises to be effective.

Another line of inquiry concerns the feasibility of putting all luggage on a conveyor belt and running it through a device that would detect a bomb. This has brought several offers to supply such devices. Air safety experts are not certain they would work.

Since America has a way of solving its problems with gadgets, the detecting device approach seems the most promising one.

SHORTAGE OF TAILORS

TAILORING IS among the trades suffering from an inadequate number of apprentices. Custom tailors fear that in another decade or two custom-made suits of clothes may be non-existent and the male will find it difficult to find someone to make alterations to a suit, if he still wears one.

Several Chicago tailors have decided to do something about the shortage of tailors. An organization—the National Hand Tailoring Institute—has been formed to attempt to attract more young men to the tailor's bench. Arthur B. Duffy, president,

These Days

Now that the Era of Smiles has gently passed away and the Cold War has been restored in all its fierceness and vulgarity, the question of security will arise afresh, because one of the enemy's methods in this Cold War is to weaken us by propaganda and infiltration.

There are agencies of government which have to do with security and which therefore stand in the way of those who believe that war is worse than the universalism which the Kremlin seeks to establish.

Charles P. Curtis made the point in a "Saturday Review" article: "...to begin with...the people who are administering our security system have not had the benefit of being watched..." This is a smart, sharp way of saying something that is not true. If it is the FBI to which he refers, then, of course, that agency is watched by Congress, which is the only constitutional body to watch it.

Annually, the FBI makes its report and comes up for appropriations. In addition, the FBI is subordinate to the Department of Justice which scrutinizes its conduct. In addition, FBI matters are constantly before the Courts which have an opportunity to look into its processes.

The assumption that it is possible for a police agency to open its files to every Tom, Dick and Harry is fallacious because then no police agency could exist and we might as well settle down to anarchy.

It is no secret that at the recently organized Commission on Government Security, some members expressed themselves on the subject of security and the FBI which definitely gave the impression to other members that what the new Commission might be designed to discover is not whether we are going about our security correctly but whether we ought not to kill off any program of security.

It is also no secret that the House Committee on Un-American Activities has become soft on security out of resentment over J. Edgar Hoover's testimony concerning Harry Dexter White.

From this standpoint, it is all right for the FBI or a Congressional Committee to investigate a misguided actor or writer or scientist but it becomes a major crime when the investigation leads to an accused spy like Harry Dexter White, who also happened to be a high official in a Democratic Administration.

There can be no logical, realistic program of security so long as Sam Rayburn's decision is that politics comes first and that the House Committee on Un-American Activities must not employ counsel who may not be interested in party politics.

If the objection is to the Passport Office, then a program ought to be devised and passed by Congress stipulating by law who is entitled to a passport and who is not. At the present time, the Passport Office is governed by a regulation set up by Dean Acheson when he was Secretary of State.

The validity of this regulation has been disputed by Judge Luther Youngdahl. So far as one can judge, from my point of view, the Acheson regulation is an excellent guide to follow. Apparently the present counsel of the State Department, Herman Phleger, does not think so because he does not risk taking his cases up to the Supreme Court for decision.

says hand tailoring is a noncompetitive field offering good jobs for qualified men.

But unless more apprentices take up tailoring, an old art may be lost, he said. The shortage of tailors affects the ready-to-wear industry because manufacturers need tailors as designers, and tailors are needed in retail stores for alteration and repair work.

In the past the majority of tailors came from abroad, but Duffy sees no solution to the shortage unless American born men are now induced to enter the field.

Women Buy Most Neckties

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK AP—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his morning mail:

That some 75 million neckties were sold during the Christmas season and 85 per cent were bought by women.

That neckties run from 47 to 54 inches long, but the average is 50 inches.

That a survey estimated U. S. men lost $48 million from their pockets each year including $6 million in taxes. But no one knows the staggering amount that wives take out of those same pockets overnight.

That 78 per cent of all highway accidents occur in clear weather and 20 per cent of the nation's drivers cause 80 per cent of the accidents.

That school children are getting stronger. To be sure a new-type school desk would stand up under juvenile squirming, it was tested by being hit 30,000 times with a 40-pound sandbag.

That there are about 250,000 vice presidents in U. S. industry (is that all? why didn't they even outnumber bird watchers?), and the Bank of America is the corporate leader with 146.

That a majority of pipe smokers honestly believe that most "sensible women" find them more attractive than men who don't smoke a pipe. But whatever happened to all the girls who took up the smoking of pipes a year ago?

That much of the bad temper in business offices results from "visual commutitis," a term the National Assn. for the Prevention of Blindness has coined to describe the eye strain suffered by commuters who read on jogging trains and buses.

That some 100,000 children will have suffered eye accidents by the end of 1955. Now is the time to get rid of any sharp-pointed toys your children got for Christmas.

That if you made good grades in school but later in life failed to make as much money as you think you should have you are a good candidate for an ulcer complex.

That seniors in engineering schools now receive an average of four to five job offers before they receive their diplomas.

That today there are three women clerical workers in American business offices to every man. If you want to meet the other sex on company time, girls, get a job in a factory.

That Raymond Massey is credited with the observation, "most of our suspicions of others are aroused by our knowledge of ourselves."

That now is a good time to post those Christmas cards your wife gave you to mail two weeks ago.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
IF JEMMY had actually come upon his father in a love scene with Morgan Channing in the woods, if he had told his mother innocently enough—that had this knowledge meant to Virginia? Lora crossed the room to French doors that opened upon a little side veranda, and stood looking out upon whipping branches and dry leaves tumbling across the yard. This house, tucked against the hillside, had some shelter, but how wild and windy it must be today up on Morgan's hilltop.

The thoughts swept back, engulfing her. Serena had said there had been some whisper of suicide. But she wouldn't, she mustn't think of that. How terrible would then be the blame heaped upon Wade. Had Jemmy told his father? she wondered. Did Wade dream of what Virginia knew? Lora was sure that whatever had happened had been Morgan's doing, yet Wade could not be completely exonerated. If this was the burden he carried in secret—the fear that his wife, because of his own action—

No wonder he detested Morgan, did not trust her. But surely Virginia must have known what her sister was like. Surely she would have put no stock in Jemmy's words. Not when she was so confident and sure of Wade's devotion. Or had she been? What depth of attraction existed between Wade and Morgan? Had Wade been after the passing of so many years? Had it perhaps never died out entirely?

Carriage wheels crunched upon the drive. That would be Wade now, coming home. She ran up stairs to her own room. Not until she had sorted these troubling thoughts into some semblance of order could she face him again. He must not read this guilty knowledge in her eyes.

After dinner that night Mrs. Tyler summoned Ellie to her room to assist her into the wheel chair for the first time in weeks. She ordered a fire built in her sitting-room grate and had herself wheeled into the dining-room where she could see exactly what vandal's act had taken place behind her back. Having looked at the substitute picture, she sent for Wade, lectured him thoroughly and then asked for Lora.

Lora had been pretending to read in the library when Wade came to fetch her. The look on his face as he came in was reassuring.

© 1955, by Phyllis A. Whitney. Reprinted by permission of the publisher, APPLETON-CENTURY-CROFTS, INC. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

"What on earth have you done to mother?" he asked. "She ate a whopping good dinner in her room and now she's ready to lick her weight in wildcats. She seems to be spitting mad at you and enjoying life thoroughly."

Lora released her breath in a long sigh. "Thank goodness! All I did was give her a good back rub, bully her a little, and tell her if she wanted to run this house her own way she'd have to get up and do it."

"Well, she's up—and you're in for it," Wade said. "She wants to talk to you right now. And I'm coming along to watch. But don't count on any help from me. This is your party."

"I have been in the dining-room," Mrs. Tyler announced. "I have seen that ridiculous print you've put in place of the excellent game painting which hung there before. I will not have three such smirking ninnies looking down at me from my dining room wall."

Lora said mildly, "It was the best Jemmy and I could find."

"Well, it won't do. On your next shopping trip to New York I shall expect you to get something more suitable in the way of flowers and fruit."

"Yes, Mother," Lora said, her lips twitching.

"Mind you, that game bird painting is a fine one. My husband paid large sum for it. It was the sort of thing he liked. But by this time I believe it has earned its worth in service. As a matter of fact, I always detested the thing. But I do not like to see good money wasted."

She said nothing at all about Jemmy's dog. Indeed, there was no mention of it then, or at any time in the next few weeks. Mrs. Tyler's recent illness was ignored by herself and never mentioned by other members of the household.

The only difference from the old life was that sometime during each day Lora went down to the old lady's room and gave her a vigorous alcohol rub. There was little conversation between them during these occasions. Weak flesh surrendered to ministering hands, and for that little while there was no question about who was in control. At all other times, however, Mrs. Tyler was again herself, despotic and demanding. But Lora no longer felt the sting. She had some how placed herself beyond the reach of Mother Tyler's whiplash.

A doctor recently accused a bride of six months "of killing her husband with kindness." Her husband had gained an excessive amount of weight. The wife, in her desire to feed her husband adequately and to demonstrate her cooking ability, simply had fed her husband too well.

The doctor explained that overweight could become a serious concern. It could affect appearance, vitality, emotions, personal and public relations and life expectancy. Overweight is due to overeating—the result of eating more calories than can be used.

The couple asked the doctor's help in working out a reducing plan. The doctor outlined the total caloric intake that could be eaten each day. He stressed the importance of three meals nutritionally adequate except for calories. Breakfast, he pointed out, is the key to any successful reducing diet. Research has shown that skipping breakfast is a strain on the body, promotes unnecessary fatigue, slows down reactions and reduces work output.

A reducing diet breakfast follows a basic breakfast pattern recommended by doctors and dietitians. It should provide one-fourth of the total daily requirements. A basic breakfast pattern includes fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. The 400 calorie breakfast pictured above shows that our bride not only could prepare attractive breakfasts but ones that fit a basic pattern—even on restricted calories.

Good soup accompaniment: Spread buttered toast with soft cheddar cheese and brown under the broiler. This tidbit is delicious with a cream of tomato or other creamed vegetable soup.

Belgian Bachelor Prefers Freedom To U.S. Charmers

"Freedom is a great and wonderful thing and should not be too easily surrendered to a woman," a young Belgian farmer says.

In fact, he adds, any man who marries before 25 in Belgium might be laughed at.

Camille Schouppe, 29-year-old bachelor, also says American girls seem prettier than Belgian lasses, but in a "false and painted way."

Schouppe, studying farms here as a farm youth exchange student, says he's delighted with American food—all but the bread which he describes as nothing more than "puff."

The great part of the diet in Belgium, he says, is bread and potatoes. And on Belgian farms, the favorite drink is beer. However, he adds, beer is consumed as a refreshment, not an intoxicant. He says there are stiff fines for Belgians who can't handle the stuff.

He says the average farm in Belgium is 4.4 acres, which makes many American farms seem wealthy and vast.

Schouppe came here from his uncle's farm about 16 miles from Brussels.

Household Hints

Add diced cooked chicken to a plain tomato aspic. Serve with salad greens and well-seasoned mayonnaise for lunch. If you want to make the tomato aspic yourself, instead of using the canned variety, use unflavored gelatin, tomato juice and such a seasoning as celery salt or onion salt. If the tomatoes are not sweet, a dash of sugar may also be added to the tomato juice and gelatin mixture before it is chilled.

Learn to make hollandaise sauce by a standard recipe. Then use it to dress up fish fillets, broccoli, asparagus (frozen or canned), snap beans.

Thickened apple cider, with raisins added, makes a fine sauce for baked ham.

For best flavor do not shell peas until you are ready to cook them.

A doctor recently accused a bride of six months "of killing her husband with kindness." Her husband had gained an excessive amount of weight. The wife, in her desire to feed her husband adequately and to demonstrate her cooking ability, simply had fed her husband too well.

The doctor explained that overweight could become a serious concern. It could affect appearance, vitality, emotions, personal and public relations and life expectancy. Overweight is due to overeating—the result of eating more calories than can be used.

The couple asked the doctor's help in working out a reducing plan. The doctor outlined the total caloric intake that could be eaten each day. He stressed the importance of three meals nutritionally adequate except for calories. Breakfast, he pointed out, is the key to any successful reducing diet. Research has shown that skipping breakfast is a strain on the body, promotes unnecessary fatigue, slows down reactions and reduces work output.

A reducing diet breakfast follows a basic breakfast pattern recommended by doctors and dietitians. It should provide one-fourth of the total daily requirements. A basic breakfast pattern includes fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. The 400 calorie breakfast pictured above shows that our bride not only could prepare attractive breakfasts but ones that fit a basic pattern—even on restricted calories.

400 Calorie Menu
Cantaloupe (½) Whole Milk (1 cup)
Puffed Wheat (1 ounce) Raisin Toast (1 slice) Butter (½ pat)
Black Coffee

Good soup accompaniment: Spread buttered toast with soft cheddar cheese and brown under the broiler. This tidbit is delicious with a cream of tomato or other creamed vegetable soup.

Want to bake a cake for someone on a salt-free diet? Use low sodium baking powder and low sodium milk.

Save the gelatin around canned ham; use it in a raisin sauce when you serve some of the ham sliced and heated.

Dress up canned small white onions. Stick a whole clove in each and heat in a cream sauce.

Belgian Bachelor Prefers Freedom To U.S. Charmers

"Freedom is a great and wonderful thing and should not be too easily surrendered to a woman," a young Belgian farmer says.

In fact, he adds, any man who marries before 25 in Belgium might be laughed at.

Camille Schoupe, 29-year-old bachelor, also says American girls seem prettier than Belgian lasses, but in a "false and painted way."

Schoupe, studying farms here as a farm youth exchange student, says he's delighted with American food—all but the bread which he describes as nothing more than "puff."

The great part of the diet in Belgium, he says, is bread and potatoes. And on Belgian farms, the favorite drink is beer. However, he adds, beer is consumed as a refreshment, not an intoxicant. He says there are stiff fines for Belgians who can't handle the stuff.

He says the average farm in Belgium is 4.4 acres, which makes many American farms seem wealthy and vast.

Schoupe came here from his uncle's farm about 16 miles from Brussels.

Kuhn-Mettler Nuptial Vows Repeated Dec. 24

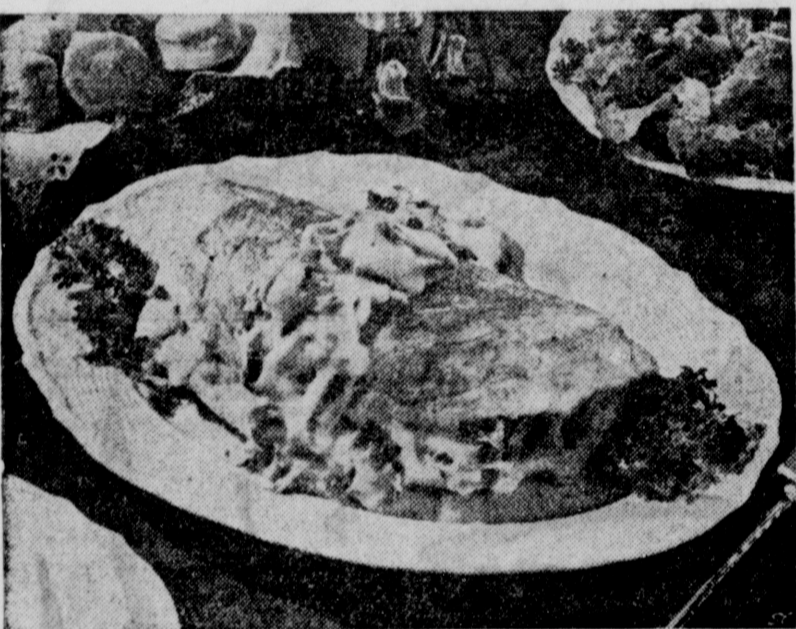

Miss Dorothy Jean Kuhn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Kuhn of Circleville Route 4, was married to Mr. Roy Eugene Mettler, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mettler of Washington Township.

The marriage was held at 10 a. m. Saturday in the parsonage of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, with the Rev. Melvin Maxwell officiating.

The bride chose for her wedding, a gown of blue crepe, sparkled with rhinestones, and white accessories. She wore a necklace of pearls and a corsage of gardenias.

The only attendant was Mrs. Elza Kuhn, mother of the bride.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Mettler are residing at Circleville Route 4.

Always in demand by the busy homemaker are main dishes that are quickly prepared, liked by everyone and inexpensive. A fluffy omelet with creamed dried beef meets these requirements. This four-egg omelet makes four servings; a sauce of creamed dried beef adds pleasing accent.

The use of quick-cooking tapioca, a neat trick every cook should know, gives stability to omelets and souffles, keeps these fluffy-high egg dishes up for attractive serving.

Creamed Beef Omelet
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca 1 tablespoon butter
3/4 teaspoon salt 4 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon pepper 4 egg yolks
3/4 cup milk Creamed Dried Beef

Combine tapioca, salt, pepper, and milk in saucepan. Place over medium heat and cook until mixture comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Add butter. Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly while beating eggs.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add tapioca mixture to egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Pour into hot buttered 10-inch skillet. Cook over low heat 3 minutes. Then bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 15 minutes. Omelet is sufficiently cooked when a knife inserted comes out clean. Cut across at right angles to handle of pan, being careful not to cut all the way through. Fold carefully from handle to opposite side and serve on hot platter. Spoon Creamed Dried Beef between layers and around omelet. Makes 4 servings.

Creamed Dried Beef. Cut or tear 1/4 pound dried beef into small pieces. Sauté in 1/4 cup butter or margarine until lightly browned. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons flour and mix well. Add 2 cups milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened.

TEACHING NO LONGER 'LAST RESORT' FOR 'CAREER GIRL'

Noted Educator Says School Work Can Be Vital, Highly Stimulating Profession

Miss Martha Shull is interviewed by Paul Shinkman.

By PAUL SHINKMAN

Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON—An attractive American "schoolmarm," whose 30 years of high school teaching have included two war-time summers as a shipyard electrician, was the slightly-frightened star of the historic White House Conference on Education in Washington.

Miss Martha Shull, teacher of English in Jefferson high school, Portland, Ore., is so proud of what she calls her "grass roots teaching" that she forgot to tell this Central Press correspondent that she was one of two full-time teachers invited to the conference, that she is first vice president of the National Education association, and that she is slated to become president in next July's elections.

"This is a long way from my English classes at Jefferson high. However, I can't forget that that is my primary job—even though I am terribly proud to be one of the few full-time school teachers invited to this conference," Miss Shull said. "If I have anything to say to the American public it is this: The old-fashioned idea that teaching is the last resort of the American girl who can't find any other career, has now been pretty generally disproved.

"The so-called 'career girl,' who used to think in terms of virtually any vocation other than teaching, now has been awakened to the fact that teaching is itself one of the most vital and stimulating careers of all.

"I believe that the greatest change in teaching during the past generation has been in the teacher's consciousness of responsibility for preparing children to face a rapidly changing world."

"THERE NOW are more ways in which I, as a teacher, can talk to my pupils. They ask quite personal questions, such as how to recognize the relation of science to religion," Miss Shull continued.

"As for juvenile delinquency, there was the comment of one of my girl students who works in a movie-theater. She came to me to confide that she was shocked and worried at the number of parents who park their children in the theater so that they can spend the evening at a tavern.

"The other day I received a letter from a girl who had been in one of my classes 13 years ago. She reminded me that I had told her she showed marked ability to write. Well, she wanted me to know that she had just had her first article accepted by a leading American newspaper."

"THOSE ARE the things, I think, which now, more than ever, make teaching a great and inspiring career, rather than what used to be considered the 'last resort' of the girl looking for a job," Miss Shull continued.

"As for marriage, I never have felt that teaching and marriage present any conflict. The 'old maid' schoolmarm has disappeared.

"More and more, girls who have a marked aptitude and taste for teaching are being given leaves of absence so that they may return to their teaching careers when their children have grown up. That is a good thing."

Miss Shull's own teaching career has included two great experiences which have carried her far from her classroom. In 1954 she represented the National Education association at the World Confederation of Organization of the Teaching Profession in Oslo, Norway. In the same year she was a United States delegate to the 17th International Conference on Education in Geneva, Switzerland.

Farmers Urged To Speed Up Orders For 1956 Fertilizer

Pickaway County farmers have been urged to act immediately in ordering and accepting delivery of fertilizer for their 1956 crops. Otherwise, they were warned, a shortage of freight cars may lead to disappointments.

"This car shortage could become so severe in the months immediately preceding Spring," the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee said, "that fertilizer producers might not be able to move raw materials in needed volume from phosphate and potash mines to factories.

"That in turn could mean localized shortages of fertilizer at the moment Corn Belt farmers need it most.

"Farmers, therefore, can serve their own interests best by ordering fertilizer now and taking delivery as soon as it can be arranged."

"THE CAR shortage exceeded 20,000 at times last fall," the committee said, "while carloadings to the west were soaring. It is tapering off seasonally now in the early winter months as the strain on rail freight facilities eases somewhat.

"This winter breathing spell should give fertilizer manufacturers their best chance to get materials from the mines in uninterrupted volume. Then if delivery of finished fertilizer is maintained in the weeks ahead to dealers and farms, factory production schedules can be kept high enough to meet spring needs.

"But if farmers delay taking delivery now, factory storages and dealers facilities will fill up. The 'pipe-lines' will be clogged, cut-backs in production will occur and the flow of phosphate and potash from mines to producers will slack off.

"Then when the spring freight traffic peak arrives, there may not be enough fertilizer to go around."

Prison Tunnel Digging Halted

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—A new plot of Washington State Prison inmates to join the outsiders in a happy New Year was nipped in the early tunneling stage.

Prison officials Tuesday reported discovery of a two-foot deep hole under the orchestra pit of the prison auditorium.

The escape effort apparently was carried on during inmate rehearsals in the auditorium for a show.

At least 50 feet of digging would have been required to reach the outside of the wall. Inmates dug a longer tunnel than that in an escape plan that carried 10 to temporary freedom Nov. 3.

Ohio Business In 1955 Said 'Great,' More Of Same Expected During '56

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—How has 1955 been for Ohio business? Simply the greatest. And the 1956 prospects? Why, a repeat performance, for sure.

That, in the broadest of strokes, is the picture of the year past and the year to come painted by replies to the annual business survey of The Associated Press.

Phrases like "record peak" and "never better" and "record industrial expansion" dot the business reports like chicken pox.

Those are the phrases of business and industry as industrial expansion booms in a state already second-ranked in the nation in manufacturing.

They are not the words of Ohio farmers, particularly the hog raisers. Ohio farm income, at latest reports, ran more than 5 per cent below that of 1954. That means Ohio farmers' pockets are thinner by more than 50 million dollars this year—and most of the loss is due to lower pork prices.

Did the late-in-the-year hog price nosedive hurt business generally? Not so anyone noticed it. After all, even farm statisticians point out, it probably has been a billion-dollar year for Ohio farmers. That is about a 10 per cent drop from 1952, the biggest cash year for Ohio farmers in history.

Expansion is the key word in Ohio industry today.

Business and industry leaders are too busy with the future to take much time to gloat over the 1955 record, summed up by one Ohio editor as:

"... One of the biggest and most profitable peacetime years in history. . . ."

Basic steel is up to its ears in unfilled orders. That sort of a backlog can spell nothing but prosperity to northeastern Ohio—so long as the shortage doesn't become so severe that it puts a crimp in the production schedules of the state's numerous steel fabricators.

The button-popping robustness of the steel business has resulted in a remarkable economic recovery in the Youngstown area.

And the year saw an equally remarkable progress toward realization of southeastern Ohio's dream of some day becoming an industrial giant.

Record payrolls, profits, sales, building and production add up to peacetime prosperity without parallel.

Prosperity means jobs and plentiful work puts to route the average man's worst bugaboo of all—unemployment.

This is how newspaper editors found the business and industrial conditions and prospects in their localities near year's end:

Cleveland—Business activity in the metropolitan area soared to new record peaks in 1955. All segments of business—manufacturing, trade and service establishments shared in the general advance.

And, according to Fred O. Kiel, senior economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, business activity in Cleveland should continue at high levels or even expand further into 1956 as the nation's rising trend of capital equipment expenditures is reflected in the important machinery and other heavy industries of the area.

Akron—Record auto production means an unprecedented demand for tires. Tires are Akron's principal product.

Measured by every standard, 1955 was a year of unprecedented prosperity for Akron and Summit County. Employment reached new levels, earnings continued upward and savings rose to all-time peaks.

Marietta — Business conditions have never been better in the long history of Ohio's first permanent settlement; the outlook has never been more promising, says city leaders and planners.

Postwar industry pouring into the Ohio Valley is the big reason and no end to the stream is in sight. Recent additions to the area's industrial picture include both the Bakelite and Electro-Metallurgical divisions of Union Carbide & Carbon Corp.; B. F. Goodrich's Plastic Products division; American Cyanamid's Calco division; the Ohio Power Co. and the Globe Metalurgical Corp.

The employment picture never was brighter and unemployment compensation recipients are few. Hold new aluminum fabricating and petrochemical plants for the mid-Ohio Valley.

Cincinnati — Business activity continues in high gear at year's end. Employment records are above 1954 levels. Unemployment compensation claims are 44 per cent below a year ago. Department store sales were up.

Electric power production continues to spurt. Latest reports indicate a 14 per cent gain over the similar 1954 period. Bank clearings will establish a record. Volume on the Cincinnati Stock Exchange will outstrip 1954 activity by a fair margin.

Commercial building construction, including industrial, schools, churches and hospitals are on the upgrade and indications are it will continue into 1956. Construction of single family dwellings showed an excellent gain. There was a drop in multi-unit buildings during 1955.

Up the busy Miami Valley from Cincinnati, they were reading nothing but plus signs. Bank debits in the valley's five major cities were up more than 200 million dollars or 12.4 per cent; postal receipts were up nearly 7 per cent; building permits increased 4 per cent and sales tax receipts for the 10 counties in the valley were up 9.2 per cent.

Wilmington—This center of hog production had a satisfactory business year—as good or better than 1954. But at year's end, implement dealers were beginning to feel the pinch of lower farm income because of the drop in hog prices.

Estimated value of construction in the city passed the 1½-million-dollar mark, principally in education buildings.

Lima—While 1955 was a banner year, 1956 promises to be better. New Ford and Standard Oil Co. plants are significant new factors in the city's economy. The Sohio petrochemical plant, now completed, eventually will employ 180. The Ford engine plant will be a building in 1956 and will offer construction jobs.

Superior Coach Corp. and Lennox Machine and Tool Builders plan additions to plants. Neon Products, Inc., already has added space.

A 1,000-house subdivision is planned and as many as four shopping centers may be built; one large downtown department store is expanding.

Van Wert—The city's employment hit a soft spot in mid-year, but it has begun to firm up again. A million-dollar sewer program probably will take up any employment slack.

Record building year leaves officials slightly mystified. They can't account for it, since employment is not increasing.

Merchants seem happier this year than last, despite impact of two strikes early in autumn. Decline in farm income hasn't seem to hurt much.

Probably one thing to help the general retail picture is the fact that a year ago the city's television boom was on full tilt; saturation point now seems near and available income now is going for other lines of goods.

Springfield—Trade and industrial activity is holding at peak levels. The rate of climb in industrial output has leveled out, but hasn't dampened optimism. In many important lines new orders are outrunning shipments and unfilled orders still are mounting. The urge is for expansion, not curtailment.

Chillicothe—The virtual end of construction at the Atomic Energy Commission plant in Pike County and the departure of most building trades workers had no serious effects on Chillicothe business. In fact, the city's building permits topped the 3-million-dollar mark for the second consecutive year. Builders are trying to catch up on the housing demand due chiefly to the influx of permanent employees at the A-plant.

Lancaster—Officials expect continued stability in commerce, industry, and agriculture. About eight million dollars' worth of construction is planned or under way in the city and Fairfield County.

Included are three new schools, new telephone building to provide dial service and a new shopping center.

Toledo—This second-largest Ohio port city on Lake Erie is looking a little beyond 1956 for its next big boom. It expects—and is planning toward the day—to become a major Great Lakes port for ocean-going commerce. The city's big opportunity will come with completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway, probably in 1958.

Toledo and Lucas County voters last month voted a special .544-mill levy for operating the newly created city-county port authority. The authority's budget for the first year of operation is $579,360. Bond issues for construction of huge new port facilities are in the offing.

Meanwhile, Toledo has shared in Ohio's general prosperity. Its retail sales in the first 10 months of 1955 were 7 per cent above the comparable 1954 period and in October were 14 per cent above the same 1954 month.

Columbus—General level of business in the metropolitan area last year climbed to new record highs. Business activity, as measured by the Chamber of Commerce index, rose to an average level of more than 57 per cent above its 1947-49 base period and nearly 10 per cent above the 1954 average. Such important components of over-all activity as construction, money in circulation, retail sales and employment all hit all-time highs.

Despite a decline in housing starts, total construction set a new record for the third year in a row. Dollar value of all construction authorized in the metropolitan area will top 120 million dollars.

The city's bank debits for 1955 exceeded 10 billion dollars for the first time in its history. In August, they topped one billion dollars for the first time in any month.

Employment over the year reached a new high average of around 268,000. In November, the number of persons at work hit a new high for any month of 277,000 despite a Westinghouse strike that idled several thousand. Cash registers in the city's more than 5,000 stores rang up sales that topped 1954 by nearly 100 million dollars.

Athens—Observers here say "all indications pointing toward another good business year for Athens as Ohio University continues to expand and local industries maintain their pace." The university, its enrollment at an all-time high of 6,000 students this year, is rushing a multi-million dollar building program to provide facilities.

Industry—the McBee Co., Athens Machine Co., Midget Motors Co., and others—shows healthy signs. The city is completing a record year in construction of new homes and in the resulting increase in property valuation. More than 50 new homes and a record amount of remodeling have added nearly a million dollars to the city tax duplicate. During the first two weeks of December's Christmas buying season, sales of sales tax stamps in Athens ran 30 per cent ahead of last year.

Transit Flyer Plan Labeled As Success

CINCINNATI (AP)—A flag-decked bus pulls up to the curb, the man with a briefcase climbs aboard, nods to his fellow passengers and takes a seat.

He'll always get a seat even during the busiest rush hours because he is a member of the Cincinnati Transit Co.'s Club Flyer.

The transit concern started the specialized service a year ago today. The company and passengers call it a success.

Each rider pays $10 a month plus 10 cents ride for the guaranteed seat and an express ride from the Mt. Lookout section of town to downtown. The total number of riders on the Mt. Lookout Run has climbed from 76 to 90.

The gross on the premium fare bus-regular riders pay only 20 cents cash for each trip, a little less with tokens, justifies the service, company executives say.

Two other "clubs" servicing other sections of Cincinnati are in operation and a fourth will be started in the Mt. Airy area soon.

While the success of the club plan might not be significant compared to a decline of 9 per cent in the total number of passengers for the entire system, company President W. R. Kellogg said the Flyers are a "step in the right direction."

Rescued Materials Show Up Missing

IRONTON (AP)—When fire broke out in the service station operated by C. F. Carty north of here, Carty and a helper risked their lives in carrying $1,000 worth of tires, tubes and batteries out of the blazing building.

The two then turned their efforts to helping firemen.

When they looked to the spot where the rescued materials had been piled, there was nothing there. Someone, apparently a thief, had catted it all away. Added to Carty's troubles was the fact that the one-story station and contents were destroyed at a loss estimated by firemen at $50,000.

Cigarette Use Seen Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A continuing gradual increase in use of cigarettes was forecast this week by the Agriculture Department, which estimated this year's output at 4½ billion smokes.

That compares with 402 billion last year, 423 billion in 1953 and a record yearly output of 435½ billion in 1952. The department said consumption of king size, filter cigarettes made substantial gains this year.

One of the factors said to be working toward increased consumption in 1956 is the prospect that incomes will continue high.

TEACHING NO LONGER 'LAST RESORT' FOR 'CAREER GIRL'

Noted Educator Says School Work Can Be Vital, Highly Stimulating Profession

Miss Martha Shull is interviewed by Paul Shinkman.

By PAUL SHINKMAN

Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON—An attractive American "schoolmarm," whose 30 years of high school teaching have included two war-time summers as a shipyard electrician, was the slightly-frightened star of the historic White House Conference on Education in Washington.

Miss Martha Shull, teacher of English in Jefferson high school, Portland, Ore., is so proud of what she calls her "grass roots teaching" that she forgot to tell this Central Press correspondent that she was one of only two full-time teachers invited to the conference, that she is first vice president of the National Education association, and that she is slated to become president in next July's elections.

"This is a long way from my English classes at Jefferson high. However, I can't forget that that is my primary job—even though I am terribly proud to be one of the few full-time school teachers invited to this conference," Miss Shull said.

"If I have anything to say to the American public it is this: The old-fashioned idea that teaching is the last resort of the American girl who can't find any other career, has now been pretty generally disproved.

"The so-called 'career girl,' who used to think in terms of virtually any vocation other than teaching, now has been awakened to the fact that teaching is itself one of the most vital and stimulating careers of all.

"I believe that the greatest change in teaching during the past generation has been in the teacher's consciousness of responsibility for preparing children to face a rapidly changing world."

"THERE NOW are more ways in which I, as a teacher, can talk to my pupils. They ask quite personal questions, such as how to recognize the relation of science to religion," Miss Shull continued.

"As for juvenile delinquency, there was the comment of one of my girl students who works in a movie theater. She came to me to confide that she was shocked and worried at the number of parents who park their children in the theater so that they can spend the evening at a tavern.

"The other day I received a letter from a girl who had been in one of my classes 13 years ago. She reminded me that I had told her she showed marked ability to write. Well, she wanted me to know that she had just had her first article accepted by a leading American newspaper."

"THOSE ARE the things, I think, which now, more than ever, make teaching a great and inspiring career, rather than what used to be considered the 'last resort' of the girl looking for a job," Miss Shull continued.

"As for marriage, I never have felt that teaching and marriage present any conflict. The 'old maid' schoolmarm has disappeared.

"More and more, girls who have a marked aptitude and taste for teaching are being given leaves of absence so that they may return to their teaching careers when their children have grown up. That is a good thing."

Miss Shull's own teaching career has included two great experiences which have carried her far from her class room. In 1954 she represented the National Education association at the World Conference of Organization of the Teaching Profession in Oslo, Norway. In the same year she was a United States delegate to the 17th International Conference on Education in Geneva, Switzerland.

Farmers Urged To Speed Up Orders For 1956 Fertilizer

Pickaway County farmers have been urged to act immediately in ordering and accepting delivery of fertilizer for their 1956 crops. Otherwise, they were warned, a shortage of freight cars may lead to disappointments.

"This car shortage could become so severe in the months immediately preceding Spring," the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee said, "that fertilizer producers might not be able to move raw materials in needed volume from phosphate and potash mines to factories.

"That in turn could mean localized shortages of fertilizer at the moment Corn Belt farmers need it most.

"Farmers, therefore, can serve their own interests best by ordering fertilizer now and taking delivery as soon as it can be arranged."

"THE CAR shortage exceeded 20,000 at times last Fall," the committee said, "while carload totals were soaring. It is tapering off seasonally now in the early Winter months as the strain on rail freight facilities eases somewhat.

"This Winter breathing spell should give fertilizer manufacturers their best chance to get materials from the mines in uninterrupted volume. Then if delivery of finished fertilizer is maintained in the weeks ahead to dealers and farms, factory production schedules can be kept high enough to meet spring needs.

"But if farmers delay taking delivery now, factory storages and dealers facilities will fill up. The 'pipe-lines' will be clogged, cut-backs in production will occur and the flow of phosphate and potash from mines to producers will slack off.

"Then when the spring freight traffic peak arrives, there may not be enough fertilizer to go around."

Prison Tunnel Digging Halted

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—A new plot of Washington State Prison inmates to join the outsiders in a happy New Year was nipped in the early tunneling stage.

Prison officials Tuesday reported discovery of a two-foot deep hole under the orchestra pit of the prison auditorium.

The escape effort apparently was carried on during inmate rehearsals in the auditorium for a show.

At least 50 feet of digging would have been required to reach the outside of the wall. Inmates dug a longer tunnel than that in an escape plan that carried 10 to temporary freedom Nov. 3.

Ohio Business In 1955 Said 'Great; More Of Same Expected During '56'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—How has 1955 been for Ohio business? Simply the greatest. And the 1956 prospects? Why, a repeat performance, for sure.

That, in the broadest of strokes, is the picture of the year past and the year to come painted by replies to the annual business survey of The Associated Press.

Phrases like "record peak" and "never better" and "record industrial expansion" dot the business reports like chicken pox.

Those are the phrases of business and industry as industrial expansion booms in a state already second-ranked in the nation in manufacturing.

They are not the words of Ohio farmers, particularly the hog raisers. Ohio farm income, at latest reports, ran more than 5 per cent below that of 1954. That means Ohio farmers' pockets are thinner by more than 50 million dollars this year—and most of the loss is due to lower pork prices.

Did the late-in-the-year hog price nosedive hurt business generally? Not so anyone noticed it. After all, even farm statisticians point out, it probably has been a billion-dollar year for Ohio farmers. That is about a 10 per cent drop from 1952, the biggest cash year for Ohio farmers in history.

Expansion is the key word in Ohio industry today.

Business and industry leaders are too busy with the future to take much time to gloat over the 1955 record, summed up by one Ohio editor as:

"... One of the biggest and most profitable peacetime years in history."

Basic steel is up to its ears in unfilled orders. That sort of a backlog can spell nothing but prosperity to northeastern Ohio—so long as the shortage doesn't become so severe that it puts a crimp in the production schedules of the state's numerous steel fabricators.

The button-popping robustness of the steel business has resulted in a remarkable economic recovery in the Youngstown area.

And the year saw an equally remarkable progress toward realization of southeastern Ohio's dream of some day becoming an industrial giant.

Record payrolls, profits, sales, building and production add up to peacetime prosperity without parallel.

Prosperity means jobs and plentiful work puts to route the average man's worst bugaboo of all—unemployment.

This is how newspaper editors found the business and industrial conditions and prospects in their localities near year's end:

Cleveland—Business activity in the metropolitan area soared to new record peaks in 1955. All segments of business—manufacturing, trade and service establishments shared in the general advance.

And, according to Fred O. Kiel, senior economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, business activity in Cleveland should continue at high levels or even expand further into 1956 as the nation's rising trend of capital equipment expenditures is reflected in the important machinery and other heavy industries of the area.

Akron—Record auto production means an unprecedented demand for tires. Tires are Akron's principal product.

Measured by every standard, 1955 was a year of unprecedented prosperity for Akron and Summit County. Employment reached new levels, earnings continued upward and savings rose to all-time peaks.

Marietta — Business conditions have never been better in the long history of Ohio's first permanent settlement; the outlook has never been more promising, says city leaders and planners.

Postwar industry pouring into the Ohio Valley is the big reason and no end to the stream is in sight. Recent additions to the area's industrial picture include both the Bakelite and Electro-Metallurgical divisions of Union Carbide & Carbon Corp.; B. F. Goodrich's Plastic Products division; American Cyanamid's Calco division; the Ohio Power Co. and the Globe Metalurgical Corp.

The employment picture never was brighter and unemployment compensation recipients are few. Hold new aluminum fabricating and petro-chemical plants for the mid-Ohio Valley.

Cincinnati — Business activity continues in high gear at year's end. Employment records are above 1954 levels. Unemployment compensation claims are 44 per cent below a year ago. Department store sales were up.

Electric power production continues to spurt. Latest reports indicate a 14 per cent gain over the similar 1954 period. Bank clearings will establish a record. Volume on the Cincinnati Stock Exchange will outstrip 1954 activity by a fair margin.

Commercial building construction, including industrial, schools, churches and hospitals is on the upgrade and indications are it will continue into 1956. Construction of single family dwellings showed an excellent gain. There was a drop in multi-unit buildings during 1955.

Up the busy Miami Valley from Cincinnati, they were reading nothing but plus signs. Bank debits in the valley's five major cities were up more than 200 million dollars or 12.4 per cent; postal receipts were up nearly 7 per cent; building permits increased 4 per cent and sales tax receipts for the 10 counties in the valley were up 9.2 per cent.

Wilmington—This center of hog production had a satisfactory business year—as good or better than 1954. But at year's end, implement dealers were beginning to feel the pinch of lower farm income because of the drop in hog prices.

Estimated value of construction in the city passed the 1½-million-dollar mark, principally in educational buildings.

Lima—While 1955 was a banner year, 1956 promises to be better. New Ford and Standard Oil Co. plants are significant new factors in the city's economy. The Sohio petrochemical plant, now completed, eventually will employ 180.

The Ford engine plant will be a building in 1956 and will offer construction jobs.

Superior Coach Corp. and Lennox Machine and Tool Builders plan additions to plants. Neon Products, Inc., already has added space.

A 1,000-house subdivision is planned and as many as four shopping centers may be built; one large downtown department store is expanding.

Van Wert—The city's employment hit a soft spot in mid-year, but it has begun to firm up again. A million-dollar sewer program probably will take up any employment slack.

Record building year leaves officials slightly mystified. They can't account for it, since employment is not increasing.

Merchants seem happier this year than last, despite impact of two strikes early in autumn. Decline in farm income hasn't seem to hurt much.

Probably one thing to help the general retail picture is the fact that a year ago the city's television boom was on full tilt; saturation point now seems near and available income now is going for other lines of goods.

Springfield—Trade and industrial activity is holding at peak levels. The rate of climb in industrial output has leveled out, but hasn't dampened optimism. In many important lines new orders are outrunning shipments and unfilled orders still are mounting. The urge is for expansion, not curtailment.

Chillicothe — The virtual end of construction at the Atomic Energy Commission plant in Pike County and the departure of most building trades workers had no serious effects on Chillicothe business. In fact, the city's building permits topped the 3-million-dollar mark for the second consecutive year.

Builders are trying to catch up on the housing demand due chiefly to the influx of permanent employees at the A-plant.

Lancaster—Officials expect continued stability in commerce, industry, and agriculture. About eight million dollars' worth of construction is planned or under way in the city and Fairfield County.

Included are three new schools, new telephone building to provide dial service and a new shopping center.

Toledo—This second-largest Ohio port city on Lake Erie is looking a little beyond 1956 for its next big boom. It expects—and is planning toward the day—to become a major Great Lakes port for ocean-going commerce. The city's big opportunity will come with completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway, probably in 1958.

Toledo and Lucas County voters last month voted a special .544-mill levy for operating the newly created city-county port authority. The authority's budget for the first year of operation is $579,360. Bond issues for construction of huge new port facilities are in the offing.

Meanwhile, Toledo has shared in Ohio's general prosperity. Its retail sales in the first 10 months of 1955 were 7 per cent above the comparable 1954 period and in October were 14 per cent above the same 1954 month.

Columbus—General level of business in the metropolitan area last year climbed to new record highs. Business activity, as measured by the Chamber of Commerce index, rose to an average level of more than 57 per cent above its 1947-49 base period and nearly 10 per cent above the 1954 average. Such important components of over-all activity as construction, money in circulation, retail sales and employment all hit all-time highs.

Despite a decline in housing starts, total construction set a new record for the third year in a row. Dollar value of all construction authorized in the metropolitan area will top 120 million dollars.

The city's bank debits for 1955 exceeded 10 billion dollars for the first time in its history. In August, they topped one billion dollars for the first time in any month.

Employment over the year reached a new high average of around 268,000. In November, the number of persons at work hit a new high for any month of 277,000 despite a Westinghouse strike that idled several thousand. Cash registers in the city's more than 5,000 stores rang up sales that topped 1954 by nearly 100 million dollars.

Athens—Observers here say "all indications pointing toward another good business year for Athens as Ohio University continues to expand and local industries maintain their pace." The university, its enrollment at an all-time high of 6,000 students this year, is rushing a multi-million dollar building program to provide facilities.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't be surprised if federal aid to education is blocked in Congress in 1956 over a fight to prevent any of the money from going to states which maintain racial segregation in public schools.

Many Democrats and Republicans say they favor providing federal money for new school buildings. But the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will do its best to have something to say about it.

This is the NAACP's position: 1. When government money for educational purposes is given to states which do not comply with the Supreme Court's decision of May 1954 to end segregation, then the government is in effect helping support segregation.

2. Therefore, if a federal aid to education law is passed the NAACP wants tacked on to it a ban against giving any of the funds to states which it says "defy the court."

The NAACP will have some support in Congress. Just how much is not clear. Most Southern Democrats will certainly vote against any federal aid bill which contains the kind of amendment urged by the NAACP. Last year a federal aid bill was left high and dry in Congress.

There was a fight then over such an amendment. Rep. Powell (D-NY), a Negro, proposed it in the House. It was killed but not before Powell had a fist fight with Rep. Bailey (D-WV) over the subject. In the end, the House never did vote on the bill itself.

Powell, one of those upon whom the NAACP is depending to lead the fight in Congress, says he will offer a similar amendment in 1956 when the federal aid bill comes up.

But the NAACP will probably want Congress to ban other kinds of federal aid for schools in states which are not integrating. The government gives money to land grant colleges, for vocational schools, and to school districts overcrowded because of some government activity in the area.

Money for those purposes is handed out by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP's Washington Bureau, recently wrote to Dr. Harold C. Hunt, undersecretary of the department. Mitchell said he "assumed" the department would not continue to give money to states continuing school segregation. Hunt reminded Mitchell that the Supreme Court left it up to federal district judges to see that the high court's ban on segregation is carried out in their jurisdictions.

So, Hunt said, before the department considered withholding school aid money there would have to be a "determination" by a federal judge that a particular state or school district was not complying with the Supreme Court's ruling.

Mitchell said Tuesday that, in view of Hunt's reply, it is up to Congress to write into legislation a ban on the use of federal money for schools in states which "defy the court."

Adlai, Warren Get Union Nod

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union newspaper reports that Adlai Stevenson and Earl Warren are regarded by union leaders as tops in appeal to labor voters among possible Democratic and Republican presidential nominees.

The Machinist, publication of the International Assn. of Machinists, said it polled the presidents of 151 unions, including all those affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

Its question as to which possible Republican nominee would have greatest support among union members was based on the assumption that President Eisenhower would not run again.

Iowa Tops Corn Crop Tabulation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department says Iowa's corn crop topped that of all other states in value this year. The value was put at $693,395,000, compared with $818,470,000 last year.

The Illinois crop was second with a value of $681,190,000; Minnesota third at $370,416,000 and Indiana fourth at $345,170,000.

GEORGE'S DRIVE-IN

FIFTY-TWO WEEKS IN 1956? THAT'S WHAT Y-O-U THINK!

By LEONARD J. SNYDER

Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON—There are just not enough days in 1956 to suit the ingenious American businessman. He's out to earn the dollars you can spare next year and has thought of more than 365 honest ways in which to do it.

As a matter of fact, he'll use every emotional appeal in the "better business" book to remind you that "there's a time and place for everything"—the time being the present and the place where his cash register opens to the tune of cash sales.

GHQ for the "best friend your dollar ever had" is at 1615 H street in the nation's capital. There, within sight of the White House, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has taken over a chore of the United States Department of Commerce—at the department's request.

It has compiled a list of "special Days, Weeks and Months in 1956" to aid retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, advertising agencies, newspapers, radio and television stations to tie in their sales promotion plans with national celebrations.

The business strategists are promoting more special days, weeks and months in 1956 than ever before in our history.

For example, there's Anti-Freeze Week (Oct. 7-13) "to promote the early sale of anti-freeze," National Apple Day (Oct. 31) "to emphasize and promote the value and uses of apples," and American Fresh-Water Pearl Month (June) "to emphasize the great beauty and value of these Native Gems, and to increase their popularity."

There's Better Bedding Time (May) "to invite consumers to retail home furnishings floors to see the nation's new super-size bedding."

We'll have National Baby Week (April 29-May 5) "to give parents (and parents-to-be), especially mothers, information on the health, feeding and other problems of babies; to interest the public and trade in babies and better baby care."

Let's Play Ball Week (March 24-31) is "to promote greater interest and participation in baseball."

There will be National Beauty Salon Week (Feb. 12-18) "to awaken American women to the value of a most precious asset, their loveliness," National Bird Week (Nov. 18-24) "to increase the interest in cage birds, their well being, popularity and benefits derived from having them," and National Bow Tie Week (June 17-23) "to promote good fellowship."

To quench your thirst, there is going to be Holiday Eggnog Time (December), National Ice Tea Time (July 6-20), and National Wine Week (Oct. 13-20). To spur the appetite we'll have National Potato Chip Week (Jan. 23-28), Kraut and Frankfurter

If the present situation continues, it will be necessary for Congress to pass an Act defining the passport and setting up rules on issuance. It is likely that Congress will follow the Acheson regulation.

If it is objected that the Department of Defense is awkward in its attitude toward security, it must be countered that no military establishment can afford knowingly to admit spies into its ranks, particularly in matters involving military secrecy.

It is unwise to leave discretion in such matters to the military whose training is to cut men down on the smallest suspicion of espionage. Guilt by such a yardstick is intolerable in a free society, but doubts must be investigated and those who are not conscious of their responsibility to flag and country ought not to wear the uniform.

Congress ought more closely to define espionage in the Cold War, so that officials act under the law and not by whim. ## Mental Patient Ordered To Lima TOLEDO (AP)—A 31-year-old mental patient who was questioned by police in the knife slaying of a young mother here Christmas Eve has been ordered transferred to the Lima State Hospital for the criminal insane.

The superintendent of the Toledo State hospital, Dr. Joseph E. Duty, said the transfer was no indication of the man's guilt or innocence in the death of Mrs. Jo Anne Burdette, 28, who was stabbed two blocks from her home.

She was taken to Mercy Hospital, where she was pronounced dead, and her body was delivered by Caesarian section.

5 New Drugs Being Used To Treat Mental 'Blues'

ATLANTA (AP)—New drugs work like a kind of mental penicillin for some mental illnesses and "the blues," medical scientists reported today.

There are five of these drugs, all acting as tranquilizing or calm-down medicines. They sometimes bring dramatic results. They may help explain what goes wrong in human minds to cause sicknesses and the blues.

Encouraging results with these drugs were described at a symposium of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, largest science meeting of the year.

With them, "psychiatry seems to have entered a new era, in a way similar to the era in medicine following the discovery of penicillin," said Dr. Nina Toll, Middletown, Conn., psychiatrist.

In office practice, she reported good results from one drug, frenquel, on patients ill for a long time, and not helped by other usual treatments. The drug helped them talk out and understand their troubles and rekindled interest in life, she said. Those who had had hallucinations still heard voices "but began to realize it was part of their illness."

Two other soothing drugs, reserpine and chlorpromazine, brought dramatic results when used together, said Dr. Werner Tuteur, clinical director, and David Lepson, staff psychologist, at Elgin State Hospital, Elgin, Ill.

Given to 12 highly disturbed women who were destructive, bellicose or untidy, the drugs made them quieter, friendly and calmer. Six have gone home to relatives who once feared to be with them. The women are continuing to take the drugs. One is working, earning $90 a week; another sings in a church choir.

Dr. Herman Denber and Dr. Etta G. Bird of Manhattan State Hospital, New York, said chlorpromazine improved more than 80 per cent of 1,300 men and women mental patients, or whom nearly 200 were sent home.

Another drug, meprobate, helps combat the depression or blues that send some people off on alcoholic binges, said Dr. Richard C. Proctor of Winston-Salem, N.C. Twenty of 26 patients stayed free of alcohol, bouts during four to six months time when they took the drug whenever they felt the blues coming on.

Another tension-relieving drug, miltown, brought improvement in varying degree to most of 300 patients hospitalized with different types of mental illnesses, said Dr. Veronica Pennington of Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield, Miss. Three per cent recovered completely, and 33 were able to go home with severe symptoms much relieved.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't be surprised if federal aid to education is blocked in Congress in 1956 over a fight to prevent any of the money from going to states which maintain racial segregation in public schools.

Many Democrats and Republicans say they favor providing federal money for new school buildings. But the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will do its best to have something to say about it.

This is the NAACP's position: 1. When government money for educational purposes is given to states which do not comply with the Supreme Court's decision of May 1954 to end segregation, then the government is in effect helping support segregation.

2. Therefore, if a federal aid to education law is passed the NAACP wants tacked on to it a ban against giving any of the funds to states which it says "defy the court."

The NAACP will have some support in Congress. Just how much is not clear. Most Southern Democrats will certainly vote against any federal aid bill which contains the kind of amendment urged by the NAACP. Last year a federal aid bill was left high and dry in Congress.

There was a fight then over such an amendment. Rep. Powell (D-NY), a Negro, proposed it in the House. It was killed but not before Powell had a fist fight with Rep. Wiley (D-WVa) over the subject. In the end, the House never did vote on the bill itself.

Powell, one of those upon whom the NAACP is depending to lead the fight in Congress, says he will offer a similar amendment in 1956 when the federal aid bill comes up.

But the NAACP will probably want Congress to ban other kinds of federal aid for schools in states which are not integrating. The government gives money to land grant colleges, for vocational schools, and to school districts overcrowded because of some government activity in the area.

Money for those purposes is handed out by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP's Washington Bureau, recently wrote to Dr. Harold C. Hunt, undersecretary of the department. Mitchell said he "assumed" the department would not continue to give money to states continuing school segregation. Hunt reminded Mitchell that the Supreme Court left it up to federal district judges to see that the high court's ban on segregation is carried out in their jurisdictions.

So, Hunt said, before the department considered withholding school aid money there would have to be a "determination" by a federal judge that a particular state or school district was not complying with the Supreme Court's ruling.

Mitchell said Tuesday that, in view of Hunt's reply, it is up to Congress to write into legislation a ban on the use of federal money for schools in states which "defy the court."

FIFTY-TWO WEEKS IN 1956? THAT'S WHAT Y-O-U THINK!

By LEONARD J. SNYDER
Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON—There are just not enough days in 1956 to suit the ingenious American businessman. He's out to earn the dollars you can spare next year and has thought of more than 365 honest ways in which to do it.

As a matter of fact, he'll use every emotional appeal in the "better business" book to remind you that "there's a time and place for everything"—the time being the present and the place where his cash register opens to the tune of cash sales.

GHQ for the "best friend your dollar ever had" is at 1615 H street in the nation's capital. There, with in sight of the White House, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has taken over a chore of the United States Department of Commerce—at the department's request.

It has compiled a list of "special Days, Weeks and Months in 1956" to aid retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, advertising agencies, newspapers, radio and television stations to tie in their sales promotion plans with national celebrations.

The business strategists are promoting more special days, weeks and months in 1956 than ever before in our history.

For example, there's Anti-Freeze Week (Oct. 7-13) "to promote the early sale of anti-freeze," National Apple Day (Oct. 31) "to emphasize and promote the value and uses of apples," and American Fresh-Water Pearl Month (June) "to emphasize the great beauty and value of these Native Gems, and to increase their popularity."

There's Better Bedding Time (May) "to invite consumers to retail home furnishings floors to see the nation's new supersize bedding." We'll have National Baby Week (April 29-May 5) "to give parents (and parents-to-be), especially mothers, information on the health, feeding and other problems of babies; to interest the public and trade in babies and better baby care."

Let's Play Ball Week (March 24-31) is "to promote greater interest and participation in baseball."

There will be National Beauty Salon Week (Feb. 12-18) "to awaken American women to the value of a most precious asset, their loveliness," National Cage Bird Week (Nov. 18-24) "to increase the interest in cage birds, their well being, popularity and benefits derived from having them," and National Bow Tie Week (June 17-23) "to promote good fellowship."

To quench your thirst, there is going to be Holiday Eggnog Time (December), National Ice Tea Time (July 6-20), and National Wine Week (Oct. 13-20).

To spur the appetite we'll have National Potato Chip Week (Jan. 23-28), Kraut and Frankfurter

Week (Feb. 2-11), Cottage-Cheese-Cling Peach Salad Time (March), National Peanut Week (March 4-10), National Donut Week (Oct. 27-Nov. 3), Ice Cream's Chocolate Revue (Nov. 1-Dec. 31), Cranberry Festival (Sept. 22), and National Hot Dog Month (July).

You'll also see National Ice Cream Festival and Sandwich Months (August), National Pickle Week (May 24-June 1), Honey-for-Breakfast Week (April 1-7), and the Kraut, Pork and Apple Dinner Season (Nov. 30).

Unusual and interesting causes are included, too. There's Tax Freedom Holiday (May 7) "to make the people of the United States more tax-conscious and to stimulate a great interest in 'good government at less cost.'"

Cat Week (Nov. 4-10) was arranged to "help save America's cats—adopt a cat," and the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Community Development Program (dates at local discretion but usually during April and May).

There will also be Universal Week of Prayer (Jan. 1-8), World Religion Day (Jan. 15), Temperance Sunday (Jan. 29), Brotherhood Week (Feb. 19-26) and Goodwill Week (May 6-12).

Pass The Laugh Week coincides with Cleaner Air Week (Oct. 21-27) and lastly, but I'm not sure it's least, is National Mother-In-Law Day (April 8) which coincides with American Comedy Week and National Noise Abatement Week (April 8-14).

So, Hunt said, before the department considered withholding school aid money there would have to be a "determination" by a federal judge that a particular state or school district was not complying with the Supreme Court's ruling.

Mitchell said Tuesday that, in view of Hunt's reply, it is up to Congress to write into legislation a ban on the use of federal money for schools in states which "defy the court."

Adlai, Warren Get Union Nod

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union newspaper reports that Adlai Stevenson and Earl Warren are regarded by union leaders as tops in appeal to labor voters among possible Democratic and Republican presidential nominees.

The Machinist, publication of the International Assn. of Machinists, said it polled the presidents of 151 unions, including all those affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

Its question as to which possible Republican nominee would have greatest support among union members was based on the assumption that President Eisenhower would not run again.

Iowa Tops Corn Crop Tabulation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department says Iowa's corn crop topped that of all other states in value this year. The value was put at $693,395,000, compared with $818,470,000 last year.

The Illinois crop was second with a value of $681,190,000; Minnesota third at $370,416,000 and Indiana fourth at $345,170,000.

CRESTLINE, Calif. (AP)—Fifteen-year-old James Sisler led his seven younger brothers and sisters to safety Tuesday night when flames leveled their mountain cabin.

The Dodgers certainly will miss the 23-year-old lefthander who beat the New York Yankees twice in the World Series last fall, including a brilliant shutout in the decisive seventh game. Still his 9-10 record in the regular season shouldn't be too hard to make up.

Podres learned yesterday he had been reclassified I-A by his draft board at Ticonderoga, N. Y., and is subject to immediate call.

Blue-Gray Teams Ready For Contest

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With the big game only two days away, rival coaches have settled on their offensive and defensive teams for the 18th annual Blue-Gray football game here Saturday.

Art Davis, Mississippi State half-back, and Bob Hardy, Kentucky, were elected co-captains of the Gray team yesterday. They're on the offensive team.

LSU's fullback, O. K. Ferguson and North Carolina's Ken Keller round out the South's offensive backfield.

Offensively the forewall will be made up of LSU's Joe Tuminello

and Howard Schnellenberger of Kentucky at ends; Jim Barron of Mississippi State and North Carolina's Bill Koman, tackles; Scott Suber of Mississippi State and Bryon Burnthorne of Tulane, guards; and Jack Prater of VPI, center.

Offensive starters for the Yankees are Jack Hecker of Bowling Green and Harold Burnine of Missouri or Leonard Zyda of Purdue, ends; Ken Panfil of Purdue and Al Portney of Missouri, tackles; Dave Weaver of Ohio State and Mike Falls of Minnesota, guards, and Allen Baumgart of Detroit, center.

Jim Haluska, a sure shot passer from Wisconsin, will be at quarterback when the Blues have the ball with halfbacks Lou Baldacci of Michigan and Joe Marconi of West Virginia and Roger Weigmann of Iowa in the fullback slot.

Fame Fleeting For Ohio's Defending Cage Champions

By DAVE DILES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — That fleeting time called fame has wasted no time flashing past last year's Ohio high school basketball champions.

Both Zanesville in Class A and Lockland Wayne in Class B are finding the road to victory a bumpy one. After 14 games, the two have only three victories between them.

Zanesville, with only one regular back from last year's squad, has one win against five losses. Lockland Wayne is 2-6.

An eligibility ruling that knocked out 6-4 Earl Frederick brushed aside three other Wayne victories. Columbus East, rated as one of the state's top Class A outfits, was the latest to take Lockland Wayne's measure, a 58-47 decision last Friday.

Zanesville dropped a 59-55 verdict to Chillicothe in a Central Ohio League fray Friday night but gets encouragement from an undefeated reserve team whose starters all measure over six feet.

Down in the Southeastern Ohio hills they're talking about another "Bevo." He's John Millhoan, 6-3 senior center for Gallipolis' high-flying Blue Devils. The jump shot artist has 181 points in his team's 5-0 season so far—an average of 36.2.

A few nights back, Millhoan scored 53 points in a 97-74 win over Huntington. He hit 15 of 21 field goal efforts and 23 of 28 free throws—and topped off the performance by snaring 20 rebounds.

A week earlier, he led his team to a new Southeastern Ohio League record for consecutive victories by scoring 41 points in a 77-62 rout of Athens. It was his team's 38th straight league win. Millhoan hit 17.

In the same circuit, Pomeroy's hapless Panthers set a new record each time they drop a league game. Right now it's 23 straight losses inside the loop.

Middletown, unbeaten in five games and already talking state tournament, boasts one of the state's flashiest offenses. The Mid-dies are rolling along at a plus-85 clip. Lima was the latest victim, 85-67, and no one has come closer than 13 points to Paul Walker's lads.

The Middletown - Hamilton clashes this season shape up again as classics. The Big Blue have a 6-1 record, the only loss a 70-60 setback at the hand of Kokomo, Ind. Hamilton downed Portsmouth Friday, 87-83.

No one has come close to beating Class B Willshire and its ace center, Gary Kesler. The Bearcats have eight straight, the latest an 87-53 conquest of Rockford, and Kesler is averaging about 32 a game and is sitting it out in the pounds on his 6-9 frame.

Last year's Willshire outfit ran up 29 victories before bowing to the champion Lockland Wayne field goal efforts and 23 of 28 free

Once-Beautiful California Valley Now Mud-Encrusted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Once beautiful river valleys and picturesque communities... now present an almost gruesome picture of mud-encrusted pastures and tumbled buildings."

That is Bill Chambers' description of what 10 days of heavy rain and floods did to Humboldt County, heart of the Redwood country in northern California. Chambers, an Associated Press correspondent at still-isolated Eureka, had to air-mail this report to San Francisco: It is almost unbelievable that water would be able to so completely destroy an area.

On the northern boundary of Humboldt County, the resort and lumber town of Klamath is but a shell of its former self. At one time the downtown business district was under as much as 12 feet of water.

The hamlet of Klamath Glen on the Klamath River virtually is no more. The smaller homes all are washed away and most of those remaining are damaged beyond repair.

Highway conditions are an engineer's nightmare—bridges broken and washed away, roadbeds undermined and slides blocking large stretches.

The floods left nearly 2,000 persons homeless and an undetermined number dead.

Damage totals about 50 million dollars. The loss to persons whose entire life's work had been put into a business of farm that was washed away cannot be calculated.

Tourists who throng the Redwood groves each summer around Myers Flat, Weott and Pepperwood would experience difficulty in recognizing those communities.

In all three places, the raging Eel River swept away most homes and small motels. The buildings still standing are off their foundations and crazily askew.

At Pepperwood, the theater, the newest building in town, sank about five feet into the water-softened earth.

In the Eel River bottomland, near the sleepy and historic town of Ferndale, once-green pastures are covered with silt and slime. The carcasses of many cattle litter the beach.

Washed-out bridges on county roads isolated many inland communities, leaving the residents without food or fuel.

It was a bleak Christmas, indeed for many who fled to higher ground only to find dwellings there so crowded with evacuees there was not enough food or bedding to go around.

But through it all, the basic kindness of man and his desire to help his fellow man stood out.

Volunteer workers for civil defense, the National Guard, Red Cross, Civil Air Patrol, Salvation Army and countless individuals gave up Christmas at home to help those in need.

The smile on many a homeless youngster's face was brought back when he was handed a toy taken from under the tree of a more fortunate child.

Blue, Gray Teams Ready For Contest

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With the big game only two days away, rival coaches have settled on their offensive and defensive teams for the 18th annual Blue-Gray football game here Saturday.

Art Davis, Mississippi State half-back, and Bob Hardy, Kentucky, were elected co-captains of the Gray team yesterday. They're on the offensive team.

LSU's fullback, O. K. Ferguson and North Carolina's Ken Keller found out the South's offensive backfield.

Offensively the forewall will be made up of LSU's Joe Tuminello

and Howard Schnellenberger of Kentucky at ends; Jim Barron of Mississippi State and North Carolina's Bill Koman, tackles; Scott Suber of Mississippi State and Bryon Burnthorne of Tulane, guards; and Jack Prater of VPI, center.

Offensive starters for the Yankees are Jack Hecker of Bowling Green and Harold Burnine of Missouri or Leonard Zyzda of Purdue, ends; Ken Panfil of Purdue and Al Portney of Missouri, tackles; Dave Weaver of Ohio State and Mike Falls of Minnesota, guards, and Allen Baumgart of Detroit, center.

Jim Haluska, a sure shot passer from Wisconsin, will be at quarterback when the Blues have the ball with halfbacks Lou Baldacci of Michigan and Joe Marconi of West Virginia and Roger Weigmann of Iowa in the fullback slot.

Fame Fleeting For Ohio's Defending Cage Champions

By DAVE DILES
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — That fleet-footed thing called fame has wasted no time flashing past last year's Ohio high school basketball champions.

Both Zanesville in Class A and Lockland Wayne in Class B are finding the road to victory a bumpy one. After 14 games, the two have only three victories between them.

Zanesville, with only one regular back from last year's squad, has one win against five losses. Lockland Wayne is 2-6.

An eligibility ruling that knocked out 6-4 Earl Frederick brushed aside three other Wayne victories. Columbus East, rated as one of the state's top Class A outfits, was the latest to take Lockland Wayne's measure, a 58-47 decision last Friday.

Zanesville dropped a 59-55 verdict to Chillicothe in a Central Ohio League fray Friday night but gets encouragement from an undefeated reserve team whose starters all measure over six feet.

Down in the Southeastern Ohio hills they're talking about another "Bevo." He's John Millhoan, 6-3 senior center for Gallipolis' high-flying Blue Devils. The jump shot artist has 181 points in his team's 56.2 season so far—an average of 3.6.

A few nights back, Millhoan scored 33 points in a 97-74 win over Huntington. He hit 15 of 21 field goal efforts and 23 of 28 free throws—and topped off the performance by snaring 20 rebounds.

A week earlier, he led his team to a new Southeastern Ohio League record for consecutive victories by scoring 41 points in a 77-62 rout of Athens. It was his team's 38th straight league win. Millhoan hit 17.

In the same circuit, Pomeroy's hapless Panthers set a new record each time they drop a league game. Right now it's 23 straight losses inside the loop.

Middletown, unbeaten in five games and already talking state tournament, boasts one of the state's flashiest offenses. The Mid-dies are rolling along at a plus-85 clip. Lima was the latest victim, 85-67, and no one has come closer than 13 points to Paul Walker's lads.

The Middletown - Hamilton clashes this season shape up again as classics. The Big Blue have a 6-1 record, the only loss a 70-60 setback at the hand of Kokomo, Ind. Hamilton downed Portsmouth Friday, 87-83.

No one has come close to beating Class B Willshire and its ace center, Gary Kesler. The Bearcats have eight straight, the latest an 87-53 conquest of Rockford, and Kesler is averaging about 32 a game and is sitting it out in the pounds on his 6-9 frame.

Last year's Willshire outfit ran up 29 victories before bowing to the champion Lockland Wayne bunch.

Once-Beautiful California Valley Now Mud-Encrusted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Once beautiful river valleys and picturesque communities... now present an almost gruesome picture of mud-encrusted pastures and tumbled buildings."

That is Bill Chambers' description of what 10 days of heavy rain and floods did to Humboldt County, heart of the Redwood country in northern California. Chambers, an Associated Press correspondent at still-isolated Eureka, had to air-

mail this report to San Francisco: "It is almost unbelievable that water would be able to so completely destroy an area."

On the northern boundary of Humboldt County, the resort and lumber town of Klamath is but a shell of its former self. At one time the downtown business district was under as much as 12 feet of water.

The hamlet of Klamath Glen on the Klamath River virtually is no more. The smaller homes all are washed away and most of those remaining are damaged beyond repair.

Highway conditions are an engineer's nightmare—bridges broken and washed away, roadbeds undermined and slides blocking large stretches.

The floods left nearly 2,000 persons homeless and an undetermined number dead.

Damage totals about 50 million dollars. The loss to persons whose entire life's work had been put into a business of farm that was washed away cannot be calculated.

Tourists who throng the Redwood groves each summer around Myers Flat, Weott and Pepperwood would experience difficulty in recognizing those communities.

In all three places, the raging Eel River swept away most homes and small motels. The buildings still standing are off their foundations and crazily askew.

At Pepperwood, the theater, the newest building in town, sank about five feet into the water-softened earth.

Youngster Ready To Test Willie Pep

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Angelo Dundee, trainer and manager of young Andy Arel, thinks "a lot of people are going to be surprised" when his boy meets the old master, Willie Pep, in a lightweight 10-round fight tonight.

"Andy and I know what we're doing," Dundee said. "If I didn't think Andy had a chance, I wouldn't take the fight."

The bout between Arel, a 22-year-old southpaw from Massena, N. Y., and the aging but still winning Pep will be televised starting at 10 p. m.

Improved Health Seen For Nation As New Year Approaches

Insurance Data Tells Of Gain On Diseases

District Residents Warned TB Funds Must Be Continued

Statistics compiled by one of the nation's top insurance firms have a cheering story to tell as Pickaway County residents join the rest of the world in looking toward 1956.

According to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the American people in 1955 were exceptionally healthy. And the outlook for next year also is favorable. The company's report not only sounds a bright note on the nation's health, but also provides authoritative data on the current fight against some of the top diseases.

The report by the insurance firm's statisticians goes on to point out:

The death rate for this year, 9.2 per 1,000 of population in the United States, will be about equal to that for 1954, which was the lowest on record.

THIS MARKS the eighth successive year for which the death rate for the country has been below 10 per 1,000 population. In 1945, only one decade ago, the death rate was 10.6 per 1,000 population, one-sixth above the level for 1955.

A notable feature of the 1955 record is another substantial reduction in mortality from tuberculosis. For the first time the death rate from this disease will have been somewhat less than 10 per 100,000 of the population.

This represents a decline of about one-tenth from the previous year.

(In this connection, Pickaway County residents are reminded that virtually all of this gain against "TB" can be attributed to the battle waged with funds donated through the annual Christmas Seal drives. Looking to the future, local residents must also remember that large amounts of money will be needed to continue treatment for tuberculosis patients, and to detect the disease early enough in unsuspected cases. Decline of the death rate will not affect this need.)

Just one decade ago, in 1945, the nation's tuberculosis death rate was almost four times the 1955 level.

Mortality from influenza and pneumonia continued at a low level in 1955. Although there have been outbreaks of influenza within the last decade, the general trend of mortality has been sharply downward. In 1945 the death rate from these conditions was 47 per 100,000 population, not far from double the present figure.

IN 1955 there were about 29,000 cases of polio in the nation, compared with about 39,000 for the year before. For most of 1955 the weekly incidence of the disease was below that for 1954. The margin between the two was most appreciable during the Summer and early Fall months, the period of the year when the incidence of the disease mounts rapidly.

Among the communicable diseases of childhood, there was an appreciable reduction in the number of reported cases of measles. For scarlet fever there was little change from the year before, but there was an appreciable rise for whooping cough.

The number of reported cases from diphtheria, already at a relatively low level, continued to decline. The combined death rate from these conditions of childhood was under 1 per 100,000 population during the year.

The 1955 mortality record for the major chronic diseases was

$190 Million Spent In 1955 On Ohio's Roads, Chief Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state highway department spent a record 190 million dollars on new construction in 1955, Highway Director S. O. Linzell said today.

Next year, Linzell said, this record will be shattered by a construction program exceeding 200 million dollars.

He said the 1955 improvement program reached an all-time high of more than 197 million dollars, including $6,851,000 for maintenance costs. Construction projects include plan and construction engineering, right-of-way and contract costs.

Prior to 1953, Linzell said, for a period of seven years the value of construction work that was done by the highway department averaged less than 50 million dollars a year.

This was stepped up to 75 million in 1953, Linzell said, and increased to 150 million in 1954.

Linzell said 130 miles of four-lane divided highways were placed under contract in 1955. Ohio now has 430 miles of four-lane divided highways in use.

Ohio Teacher Shortage Seen Until 1964

COLUMBUS (AP)—There will be little relief for Ohio's teacher shortage until at least 1964, officials of the State Department of Education contend.

In an annual report on teacher supply, officials said the shortage was caused by "the unprecedented increase in public school enrollment" and increased loss of teachers through retirement.

Harold J. Bowers, director of teacher education and certification, compiled the report. He said Ohio now has almost 4,000 or six per cent of its teachers who are undertrained and hold temporary certificates.

Bowers said that during the 1940s, about 470,000 more children were born in Ohio than during the 1930s.

He said the 1940 crop creates the crowded classroom conditions of today, while officials must look among the smaller 1930 group for new teacher supply.

"Since there will be no significant increase in the number of high school graduates prior to 1960," Bowers said, "then 1964 or 1965 will be the earliest date when an adequate supply of new teachers will come from Ohio's colleges."

The state's colleges prepare about 50 per cent of Ohio's new teachers. And this state has had a teacher shortage for the last 15 years, the report said.

about the same as that for 1954, according to the statisticians.

There was little change in the death rate from cancer, which continues to account for about one-sixth of the total mortality, the statisticians note. On the other hand, the death rate from heart ailments showed a small rise, practically all of which occurred in mortality from coronary artery disease. There was practically no change in the death rate from diabetes.

The accident fatality rate during 1955 was practically as favorable as in 1954. The record for occupational accidents was about the same in the two years, but home accidents showed a moderate decline.

IN CONTRAST, the death rate from motor vehicle injuries rose. The suicide rate in 1955 increased somewhat, but that for homicides dropped slightly.

Infant mortality continued to improve in 1955 and the rate will be about 26 per 1,000 live births, a new low for the United States.

Businessmen Amazed By Dollar Sales

1955 Turnover Total May Run Fifth More Than Previous Year

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen busily totting up their final accounts this week still act a little amazed at how much they produced and sold this year.

Whether it's men's suits or rubber tires, cigarettes or machine tools, the totals seem hard to believe.

Merchants closing their books on a fat Christmas and readying their usual post holiday promotions report dollar sales this season topping last year's, sometimes by as much as one-fifth. The national average will be a much more modest gain, but in almost all parts of the country Christmas trade was the best ever.

The railroads added sharply to their earnings in moving these goods around. The Assn. of American Railroads estimates the carriers will net 915 million dollars after taxes this year, a gain of 34 per cent.

Automobile production set a record and crowded the eight million car figure.

Steel mills turned out a staggering 116 million tons of the metal to beat its previous record in 1953 by 4½ million tons.

The building industry reports Americans spent a record 42 billion dollars for construction of all types. Businessmen put out nearly 28½ billion dollars for new plants and equipment, a gain of 1½ billion. The National Machine Tool Builders Assn. reports 900 million dollars worth of new orders in that industry, compared with 650 million the previous year.

Electronics producers moved nearly 6½ billion dollars worth of their goods to market. Aluminum mills shipped a record four billion pounds of the metal, a gain of 36 per cent for the year. Americans consumed a record 1½ million tons of rubber.

They bought even bigger things than cars. Dewitt C. Ramsey, president of the Aircraft Industries Assn., says aircraft sales this year approach 8½ billion dollars. Uncle Sam is the best customer, but private lines laid out money, and so did corporations and individuals to buy business or personal planes.

Looking ahead, businessmen spent more than four billion dollars this year for industrial research, according to Clyde Williams, president of Battelle Institute, Columbus, Ohio. This is 350 million more than was spent in 1954.

Even the rate of failures in business has a bright side. This year 42 firms in every 10,000 closed. But the average over the last 55 years has been 71 in 10,000.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland rounds it up this way: "If the description of business activity in 1955 had to be limited to one word, the most fitting would be 'tremendous'."

Improved Health Seen For Nation As New Year Approaches

District Residents Warned TB Funds Must Be Continued

Statistics compiled by one of the nation's top insurance firms have a cheering story to tell as Pickaway County residents join the rest of the world in looking toward 1956.

According to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the American people in 1955 were exceptionally healthy. And the outlook for next year also is favorable. The company's report not only sounds a bright note on the nation's health, but also provides authoritative data on the current fight against some of the top diseases.

The report by the insurance firm's statisticians goes on to point out:

The death rate for this year, 9.2 per 1,000 of population in the United States, will be about equal to that for 1954, which was the lowest on record.

THIS MARKS the eighth successive year for which the death rate for the country has been below 10 per 1,000 population. In 1945, only one decade ago, the death rate was 10.6 per 1,000 population, one-sixth above the level for 1955.

A notable feature of the 1955 record is another substantial reduction in mortality from tuberculosis. For the first time the death rate from this disease will have been somewhat less than 10 per 100,000 of the population.

This represents a decline of about one-tenth from the previous year.

(In this connection, Pickaway County residents are reminded that virtually all of this gain against "TB" can be attributed to the battle waged with funds donated through the annual Christmas Seal drives. Looking to the future, local residents must also remember that large amounts of money will be needed to continue treatment for tuberculosis patients, and to detect the disease early enough in unsuspected cases. Decline of the death rate will not affect this need.)

Just one decade ago, in 1945, the nation's tuberculosis death rate was almost four times the 1955 level.

Mortality from influenza and pneumonia continued at a low level in 1955. Although there have been outbreaks of influenza within the last decade, the general trend of mortality has been sharply downward.
